Commentary and Guidance for Enlightened Change During Rapidly Changing Times

A-List Update #12

July 16, 2011

Notes from April 2011 through July 2011

“This is a time to realize that a terrible nightmare is ending and to welcome the new energies and to prepare ourselves for a new way of being. Many are now finding their “boarding pass and departure tickets” in hitherto invisible “coat pockets”. “

“The last week of June and first week of July marked the influx of the new energies and an end to the “last minute” latitudes granted to certain higher levels to conduct their own completions. Time is up for them. Time is up for the human level as well. It is time of the descent of the higher energies. These are of the highest order and are not corruptible.”

Preface

I am writing these days to a rarified number of people who in turn represent a small fraction of one percent of humans today. That is how it is. This “rarified” group of people represent the leading edge of the transformational processes underway. I will also be writing less and less, since there is little more to say.

Some of what I is presented may disturb or unsettle some readers. But if you adopt a cognitive perspective that is more on par with your higher levels of knowing, then this will make more sense and thus will not be so “disturbing”.

As in the “as above”, there is the next stage of correction energies. It is like a massive incoming wave front that is compressing and dissolving the discontinuity or boundary zone that is a buffer and barrier between the dark or fallen sector and the rest of true creation. It is also being ushered in by some higher level beings in specific ways, so it is not only broad wave. This is leading to a new type of coherency and a more direct connection with the real higher oneness of true creation. Like a magnetic separation process, all that is of the dark, all particles, wavelets, entities, and thought forms are being removed and pulled one way and all that is of the true light or identifies with the true light is being pulled the other way. It is a challenging experience for those most engaged with this, however you look at it. Anything that has relied too much for its existence upon the dark or derivations of the dark, will find it a difficult time.

While this may sound to some like metaphor and analogy, more importantly, it is very literal and very definitive.

This is already being reflected some in the “as below” realm, but not in any overtly positive manner, but rather as a type of new surreality in which the powers-that-be feel comfortable enough presenting nearly any manner of nonsense and lies to a human population that mostly still accepts this as the only reality and so remain engaged in the falsehoods.

Many are dropping out, knowing at some level that it is all non-reality, at least for themselves. And a small fraction of a percent of people are turning away and engaging with a higher attractor that is identified with the correction energies. And of course there are those who are forced out into an economically marginalized social caste that is amorphous and heterogeneous.

There is also an in-between spectrum of people who are either actively opposing the status quo or who are latching on to one falsehood after another, including those imagining some new “golden age” that will suddenly change some version of a hell-on-earth into some fantastical earthly paradise.

That is not how the transformational process works.

Consider how few humans understand the nature of the human social reality. Now consider how rare it is for anyone to understand much about ontological reality. Consider how idiotically naïve most new-agers are and how dangerously ignorant the religiously stupefied are. What has anyone learned at their human level? Why project that sort of low level awareness into a higher vibratory world? It would be like introducing a deadly disease into a pristine environment. When you die from your human body, the human belief systems that are strongest will influence that self’s next stage of existence. At least initially.

The very notion of a “golden age” is colored by falsehoods and illusions of present day consciousness projecting something of itself into a make believe past. Most of what is provided as evidence of a “golden age” was an earlier version of present human existence that was mostly infected with the same problems as that of present day human existence. The technological simplicity or prowess of some imagined glorious civilization long passed has absolutely no bearing on the state of their spiritual consciousness. This is like fancying that primitive “indigenous people” are “naturally” more spiritually correct and live in such great harmony with their environment. Or like those dangerous fools who believe that ET’s/aliens that have mastered advanced technology must therefore be more spiritually and ethically evolved than earth humans. What utter nonsense.

The transformation and ascension process may have certain common shared patterns overall, but truly it is unique for each and everyone of us. We can support one another’s process in various ways, but it usually is unique to each. Hence it is presumptuous to claim that this process is leading to certain specific outcomes that are applicable to most everyone.

On a personal note, part of me is already in 2012 and on. Prior to leaving Montana, part of me was already breathing the air of our new location and I could smell the air there at times, even though still in Montana. Perhaps this means that our energy bodies can convey human sensory effects to our human physicality. Our new location, will be more suited to our next stage of whatever it is we are becoming.

Some are evolving/mutating/growing rapidly. Imagine shedding you old self on a daily basis! Like walking out of one body as the new one is shaping up, constantly. For some memories are affected, for others most memories are intact, but very distant feeling, detached from your ever-newly emerging new self. Whatever or whomever you may have once thought yourself to be or were about changes as well. Shedding everything. Some will shed their ordinary physical bodies this way, some will still maintain their “physicality” as it may be relevant to their new way of being. Some might even lose 3-d solidity. This is part of the ascension process.

Taking the “Red Pill” or a Pseudo-version?

In human language, “awakening” is being deliberately cross-linked to “spiritual awakening” as part of an end game to keep humans enslaved one way or another by one set of dark interests or another –or to be fodder of the dark at a slightly higher level. Fortunately the latter situation is closing down fast. The former problem is one that will also become increasingly limited, but not necessarily in a gentle manner from the ordinary human perspective.

Too many are conditioned to believe that they are “awakening” to the reality of the human situation relative to the global elite and the systematic fraud of established social-political-economic modalities. Many have been deluded into believing in various notions of “human sovereignty”. This is not an a spiritually enlightened awakening, and most who are “getting a clue” as to how this existential reality or social surreality is set up are for the most part only getting a small portion of the true situation.

Those who persist in studying the situation discover the horrifying extent of all this and then find the situation more than a little upsetting to their human sensibilities. As one comes to understand these matters, it is best to continually engage in the practice of looking away from all that and focusing on what is of ones highest attraction as a spiritual being. That is both as a new type of human-focused spiritual being and as a larger spiritual entity that is far more than the sum of its physical existential experiences.

Pattern Recognition and Self-Teaching Through Higher Awareness

If you do not understand the close similarities in the “as above” patterns of the dark to the patterns in the “as below” human realm, then you cannot grasp what is going on and thus have only limited avenues of response: One defaults to oppositional anger to an enemy that cannot or need not be fought; Another defaults to denial or some psychopathology; Yet another leads to the abyss of survivalistic impulses without benefit of a guiding higher spiritual consciousness.

However, those who are more aware and conscious have other avenues open to them.

Endless war (WW3 to the end) is now official. Just as fewer people are disabusing themselves of the lies of “democracy”, there are comparable numbers embracing fascistic social dynamics to enforce the illusions of stability and constancy. There is no correcting this through reasoned discourse.

The keepers of secrets of officialdom are now so confident of the ability to influence and control that they do not worry much about hiding their lies, falsehoods, and all manner of deceptions in cleverly constructed packaging for mass consumption. Why? It matters less and less to them anymore given what they know of the global changes beyond mere human militaristic politics. And they have their internal impulses, their own dark programs to run given their state of consciousness and nature of being.

To those who know the real truth of this false reality and who know the real truth beyond the falseness of the dark, it no longer matters. But for far different reasons.

These similar appearing “conclusions” and the respective motivations are quite antithetical of one another.

Over recent weeks my global scanning of human info sources has shrunk to barely 15 minutes each day. Maybe not even that at times. That is the level of importance I place on any of the mainstream or so-called “alternative news”. There is no “news” partly because of the control by the powers-that-be and partly because there really is nothing new of “news”. This is one more indication of the dissolution of this reality for humans. And that is about it.

For those still glued to all manner of “news and info”, please consider unplugging the television and unplugging from endless Internet-based speculative chatter and focus instead upon finding new possibilities for your human existence. For most humans this is too frightening and so they are afraid to “unplug” and so continue to feed off of the latest insanities and mayhem, even while pretending they are absorbing “intelligent” commentary and analysis.

I would like to receive thousands of emails from everyone asking to take them off the “A-List”, telling me “hurray” they really “got it” now and a nice thank you and have a good life and see you down the road sometime for tea and cookies.

Introduction

In this most recent update I share notes and observations from April until the present. Of greatest importance is the change that occurred during the last week of June and first week of July at the higher levels.

For those who have not monitored the NES Forums, a May 1 posting is included at the end of this Update.

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1161.msg5164/topicseen.html - msg5164>

Over the recent years, through Global Awakening News, NES forum postings, A-List Updates, and despite limitations with human language, we have attempted to describe various qualities of “spiritual knowing” based mostly upon our own direct experience. The content we have freely shared goes beyond most of what has been previously known and available, and offers new insights and clarity beyond the confusion and falsehoods that have shaped human spirituality and metaphysics. While we are not the only ones doing this, there are rare few today who are doing anything publicly close to this.

We have tried to be clear in outlining the commonality of patterns between the “as above” and the “as below” across many different levels of relative existence and awareness. We have done this also in the context of distinguishing between dark force distortions and that of what could be called the light/consciousness of true creation where higher oneness permeates “The All”.

Applying the principles we have described and analyzed, readers are empowered to discern and assess for themselves what they encounter in the human and higher realms.

The real changes going on really are not related to the turmoil in the world today. The vast majority of the turmoil and conflict is due to deliberate provocations and social engineering by various factions of the powers-that-be or wanna-be. Soon this will be confounded with anger and confusion and upset over the loss of familiar yet dysfunctional mass conditioning that is generally accepted as “normal”. Those who continue to pretend at being spiritual leaders while promoting dark-side paradigms and other falsehoods will find that the “plug has been pulled” on them. This is part of tearing down the veils. Those who continue to be acolytes of these people will be in for a rude time as well. Those humans who are in service to the dark through their fealty to other dark side humans or more directly through dark side spiritual practices, will also be in for a rough time of it.

The correction energies of the higher light do not have “loop holes”.

The main thing now is to note the new changes underway and to encourage everyone in their process of completion and detachment from the old – in everyway imaginable.

Many continue to ask “how to do this?” (to reposition their human selves for these great changes). There is no single way, no pat answers. For some it will be by choice or circumstance that they stay where they are and begin “building bubbles” around themselves and with others who they are most close to spiritually and perhaps other “bubbles” with those with whom they have a cooperative trust relationship at the very least. No doubt there will be some overlap between these. For some this may mean dropping connections with family and others who they may have formerly regarded as “friends” or co-workers. For some this may mean moving away from all that has been familiar and to focus on creating a new life for themselves that is focused upon their transition and may even do so with others who they may feel spiritually close to.

How ever this all plays out, there is little room for the falseness of human civilization, worrying over investments, ones employment salary, and the “right schools”, etc. “Just enough” and self sufficiency will take on greater importance to many.

This is a matter of surrendering to a process that does not have an operators manual just yet and perhaps never will.

As I have shared in email with a few people recently, I too am having my own difficulties maintaining anything of a functional existence in this material world. All manner of things that require what feels like a tremendous effort on my part to deal with. This is all part and parcel of what I include under the heading of “efforting” and given what I do know, I have less and less interest or need to maintain the sort of compartmentalization that has formerly allowed me to project a certain persona that functions in the ordinary world. I would say that this has accelerated in my own process since March of this year. Now I must find new ways to simply “be” despite the glaring incongruities of daily life.

Why bother at all? Speaking for myself, I find that I have to be more and more careful what it is I “bother” with these days so that I can pay closer attention to my own process and knowing and to continue the process of connecting in with the higher energies that are incoming as of the recent weeks. I will do this as long as it is appropriate for me. Consequently, even the simplest things of daily material life require more conscious processing. Why do this, why do that? What to eliminate? This alone can be very challenging to the human self as a living meditation since it brings up so many other concerns and issues.

It is my assessment that these challenges are only slightly related to the problem of knowing real from surreal or truth from falsehood, and in then finding a functional way to maintain ones personal human existence and in a human and physical world that is based upon falsehoods. I have had to deal with those problems for a long time.

Having left our Montana “nest” from which we thought we would be changing and transforming and moving to a new location that is temporary and not set up to our convenience, has been both a welcome situation and stressful one. Our situation stimulates me to consider where and how I would like to be physically situation in my final stages of ordinary human existence. What might I want to do or where to be that would be pleasing enough during this stage. To wit, there is an article at the end of this Update concerning my practical thoughts on this matter and that floats an idea that could extend to others.

Something is quietly occurring in what we would call the earthly human level.

There is not much to say on this yet. It is too soon.

I do not know how it will work out as it is an experiment –one that is inventing itself as it goes.

The “Changes” and More

More and humans will be finding in small and large ways that their human lives now -- and that of their ancestors -- has been an ongoing falsehood. So many will be angry to find that what they were taught to be “true and right” is actually false and un-right. It will be a time of enormous sorrow and anger as humans throughout the world begin to realize something of this terrible truth.

Those who are more spiritually awake know that this reality -- and the distorted human existence that has been cultivated within it -- was never “real reality”. As with readers here, they have suspected there is difference between the reality of higher oneness and true creation and the surreality of the dark version of creation that has dominated here.

This is not a time for us to dwell in “sorrowful anger” over contaminated illusions of a brief existence in a fallen world populated by barely functioning humans who are more like the “walking dead”.

This is a time to realize a terrible nightmare is ending and to welcome the new energies and to prepare ourselves for a new way of being.

Many are now finding their “boarding pass and departure tickets” in hitherto invisible “coat pockets”.

The last week of June and first week of July marked the influx of the new energies and an end to the “last minute” latitudes granted to certain higher levels to conduct their own completions. Time is up for them. Time is up for the human level as well. It is time of the descent of the higher energies. These are of the highest order and are not corruptible by the dark. As far as I can tell.

This shift occurred at the last moment, perhaps even a moment too late. Much of humanity has been asleep and on a course headed to a veritable “hell on earth” as one path in the great bifurcation that was developing. This delay may contribute to a substantial portion of humanity be swept into a short term version of greater suffering. Like a the tail winds of a sandstorm. I cannot say for sure this will be happen, only that I wish to point this out as a possibility now.

My concerns over the delay at the higher levels were also that it could lead to the rise of new type of dark forces from a trapped humanity –one based upon an incomplete realization of the larger spiritual situation and background. Such an incomplete perspective can lead to a rejection of the true light or true creation. Recently, I have noticed this has a basis with some who are promoting notions of “human sovereignty” or “integral human”.

I trust that the new energies which are underway will help to minimize these problems.

The delay I refer was partly to allow further higher level “learning” of the lessons from this existence and elsewhere. One of the problems with this is that there is a fine line between appreciating with hindsight that the new evolutionary developments will yield a great leap forward in deleting the dark as well as acquiring the essential lessons from this horrible distortion that occurred in a region carved from the larger creation.

Thus, one could say with benefit of hindsight that “it has all been worth it” (and I would add, ...but never again!). It is one thing to see such things literally in a “new light” once through the process, and another thing to advocate this as a strategy. Pursuing a course of the latter is what some have been concerned about as so very risky that it no longer should be pursued.

I am not saying that things will not get a lot worse for humans on this planet. It is likely it will in the short run. The main thing is to prevent a prolonged period of human suffering that, in a generation or so to come, could become the grounds for a new form of dark forces. I have explained this some in previous articles.

When we examine the various tendencies among “Gnostics” and others from our “recent ancient” times, there were various schools of thought as to the nature of the spiritual reality and God. There was one notion that the “creator god” was insane and thus there was little hope (early nihilism?), another inferred the existence of local “false” gods who were insane but who did not represent the intentions or thoughts of true creator. (Thus they inferred the existence of another level or zone of creation.) And so there was a tendency toward believing that this fallen realm might be some sort of punishment or deliberate teaching grounds and so set to work to crack the curriculum but in so doing they “embraced the dark”. At some point there we those who figured out the whole thing was a colossal screw up and that help was on the way and became determined to develop their connection with true creation and lend a hand if they could.

These are limited generalizations of course, but these simple examples illustrate how confused humans have been and how readily they could be manipulated. Unfortunately rare few connected in directly with the true creation energies as they were mostly blocked by the control fields and belief systems of the dark.

During much of this year, it became evident that humanity was in a type of rough “stasis mode”. Yes, there has been a noticeable up-tick in planetary changes, but these are still fairly moderate in scale. On the human front, there has been no news, nothing new under the sun as they say, and this has been going on for some months. This became plain during February or March to those who might have been paying attention.

Yes, there continue to be usual “rumors” of the instability of the human social, economic, and political order. And yes, various forces are quite earnest in preparing for global warfare and yes, the global economic systems are about to be taken down, largely under the influence of the human powers-that-be and wanna-be’s. These are also influenced by the higher dimensional dark side intentions of a scorched earth policy.

Many things we anticipated occurring one year ago are now occurring. This seeming shift of one year is partly due to the maneuverings of the human elites as they found they could gain themselves additional time and space to consolidate or expand their various circles of power and influence. It is also related to the previously noted “stasis effect” which has a larger dynamic behind it.

Whatever ways we consider things, the main pattern has been an ongoing “pressure cooker” for most of humans that has concentrated fear and suffering and an angry backlash. This has been orchestrated both by the human elites and their dark side counterparts to siphon all the subtle and material energies they take can from humans and the planetary body. It is in their very nature to do this, with regard those who are a part of the dark side.

The higher spiritual forces are not concerned with human notions of nations, states, priesthoods, flags, ideologies, personages, economic systems, or any of that. The entire stable needs clearing.

The disease of the dark and its twisted notions of “reality” are to be deleted from existence. Eventually it will be as if the dark never existed and all that will remain will be a type of inoculation of all creation against such a horrible thing from ever occurring again.

The foregoing may also help provide a little insight into the fundamental problem of all the religions, new-age-isms, and all the rest of the distorted notions to “embrace the dark”, “love the dark”, “polarity/duality is normal”, or that the dark forces are a deliberate teaching tool from true creator, etc.

Those of good intentions who inadvertently presumed and assumed such errors will eventually know the difference and this will be one of the beneficial outcomes of the “great correction”. While the dark was not part of some “grand scheme” of a twisted “self-education process” of true creation, the outcome will be a much clearer “high-gnosis” that will permeate an “upgraded” creation.

The capacity for the correction energies to sweep all this away is far beyond the counter-capacity of the dark. The forces of light have been preparing the way for bringing all this to its terminal and final completion with as much grace and light and higher order consciousness as possible. It has taken this long in terms of human earth-time to get to this point. Creation in its far flung entirety is so vast, populated by expansive beings that operate beyond any notion of human time. And so it has taken until now.

One might imagine an enormous apology and comforting to its own vast Self for what has occurred as all is “made right”. From the point of view of an awakening human consciousness, this may not seem like enough and may seem like “too little too late”. For that, one could imagine great waves of compassionate care and healing along with the enormous currents of “correction energies”.

The apparent “holding pattern” is about to release. It is not under any type of “finely regulated” control, save that of the broadly encompassing flow regulation of Time, which Itself is a part of the larger correction energies from the inception of the original cosmic error. Thus all events are caught up in this.

It is my sense that the flow of “time” at the higher levels is now being more closely brought into 1:1 step with 3d earthly time fairly quickly. This reduces the problems of some of the nearby higher levels seemingly too remote from the problems in the timestream of 3d which results in too little regard for the self-abuse that these larger beings are in effect inflicting upon themselves, often unwittingly, and the traumas that are accumulating at the 3d levels which their aspects are presently enmeshed in.

As of this writing, I do not expect a smooth and easy process for humanity as some might wish. That said, I know some will move through this with the ease and grace of flowing water and light. The better our own process, the greater the possibilities for a smoother transition for many and so our own transformational process can also be a form of greater service.

I wish to emphasize again, how important it is to think and process all of this from a higher level of consciousness than that of the ordinary human self. The ordinary human self is ill-equipped for these changes, even when presented with the possibilities and implications in a “reasonable” way. The closest is when the human self shares in something of a higher dimensional experience –this is found in many near-death-experiences, certain types of meditative or out-of-body states, etc.

The precarious state of the human self is such that the vast majority of people unconsciously do not want to know anything of the truth of the surreal spiritual-energetic prison they have so closely identified with and so will avoid hearing anything of what is real, until the last moment of their ordinary existence. Even those who are more spiritually oriented, do not want to know this and prefer platitudes of “love and light” or that “mother earth” is taking care of everything, etc.

Readers here include a large proportion who have been through these unusual experiences and have kept their wits about them over time. Even so, the times we are in now, have been so very challenging to most of us and in so many ways. Some are beginning to see and feel the “light” and are welcoming a swift completion this stage of things as the process itself, fascinating as it is, is really not something one wants to prolong any more than it is really necessary.

While many of us here would like to be as spiritually conscious as possible during these great changes, not all will be, perhaps due to the exigencies of their human life on earth at this time. It is a “no-fault” system of changes. If you “blank out” during part of this process, you will have ample opportunities to review and reflect upon all this as you move from one state of existence to another.

By analogy, swimming or surfing ocean waves can be a wonderful experience, even being turned around in a wave can be exhilarating. But getting seriously injured or totally exhausted in the process is not something one may want to encourage as part of the “wave experience”. Some may prefer to skip part of the process, like an internal fail-safe against excess trauma. Yet, many will find ways to cushion themselves from the buffeting. What I am alluding to here is the overall effects of the energetic, geophysical, and human social-economic changes.

So here we have further cause not to become captivated by the latest speculative frenzies promoted by questionable sources, usually via the Internet. It is imperative to disconnect from this and be quiet to better establish your own personal and soul level uplinks to the new incoming energies.

All those who are part of the great changes at their soul levels as well as their human levels will not miss out on anything of any importance –regardless of how easily or roughly they go through this now. Consider it is a “no fault” plan.

Physical and Energy Body Notes

The effects of these new energies on us is very interesting. They are both incoming and being deliberately guided, rather than only broadcast waves. For some there are growing problems maintaining some continuity or functionality with the familiar while taking in and processing all that is new and so very welcome. (Translated, it means not going nuts and completely “losing it”, just slightly “losing it”. Cashews anyone?)

By way of analogy, in the descent of the higher energies, the human physical and subtle bodies are asked to maintain some semblance of the old to keep the personal self going on. After all, we are all in the process of processing a new type of higher learning that embraces 3d as well the higher dimensions of our being. For some it is also an experiment in the transmutation of the mundane and corrupted matter and its matter consciousness into something closer to the original divine template.

Imagine your body organs or the neuro-muscular systems being asked now to carry on in the old way and at the same time get modified with “upgrades”. They are getting new chemicals, new energy impulses, new “marching orders” leading to a direction altogether different from the familiar course. And they are being asked to keep enough of the old going until the new has formed sufficiently to take over. A tall order indeed!

It is this interim process of changeover that can be so difficult. Sometimes there are simple bodily annoyances, perhaps more serious aches and pains and lack of familiar function. Sometimes near complete system breakdown. Neuro-muscular systems is one that I have noticed with a number of people, and in some, the heart and other organs such as the pancreas. The adrenals can begin secreting new substances that are similar to the familiar ones, but yet different somehow. A new “recipe”. And the bodily organs and cells are not sure what to do with these.

This is one reason that I have paid closer attention to taking care of my body more than ever. More specific types of exercises to help with neuro-muscular changes, gradual and considerate prolonging of ocean swimming, etc. My food intake has lessened considerably from what was already quite modest. New supplement mixtures have also been needed. Changes to sleep patterns. Talk to your cells. Ask how they are doing. As part of human embodiment, damage or decrepitude of ones physical body can trigger a rapid downward spiral that involves the emotional and mental fields in ways that accelerates a downward spiral into worsening states of the “walking dead”. This is so common these days. And so many people are taking mind-dumbing pharmaceuticals, to counter some of this, usually with the encouragement of medical officialdom.

Nutritional supplements are not a panacea for physical or non-physical issues. However they can be used to support both bodily changes and mental processing of higher vibratory signals. Avoiding the toxic EM and electrical fields is also important. I have made a point of acquiring suitable metering equipment to sweep the house and surround environs for the most common of RF, EMF, and electrical fields. In Montana the house wiring was of an older style and I had to get special shielding for under my office area and kitchen floor, etc. and shut off the overhead fluorescent lighting in the walk-in basement pantry.

Some here have been building energy “bubbles” around themselves to help buffer the harshness of a dying human world and the friction with others who are increasingly incompatible. Emotional upset can be especially deleterious to this delicate transitional process as it affects much of your subtle fields instantly.

One of the we have been noticing has to do with the transition stage between ordinary cellular physical metabolism and light body non-physical metabolism. For a while it is on/off and with neither able to provide a stable situation at times. Rest and calm and some experimenting with supplements is one way of supporting this process. All I can offer for explanation at this moment is that the light body structures I am referring to here are designed to house our consciousness, not to maintain or operate a physical body that has been accustomed to carrying a limited consciousness through an existence in a hazardous and dying world. These new structure “know” very little about the problems of a the cellular matter-based body, especially ones compromised by their environment.

It is so hard to maintain ones equanimity between the turmoil and insanity of the external world and the drastic nature of these internal processes. Speaking for myself I have decided that “if it ain’t broke” and if you do not need/want it, then leave it –and “if it is broke”, leave it. (Or give it away if appropriate.)

This can also mean that these bodily and energy challenges can be harder to deal with from time to time since you are closer to tasting the new energies and feeling them, however brief those intervals may be at first. And it is hard at times to be gentle and easy on yourself. Many of us would just to “get on with it all “ and get this interim process over with, whatever that may be.

So this is another consideration in staying as conscious of these changes as possible. It is a way to monitor and participate in your own cellular-subtle laboratory. Too much, too soon and you might go boom!

I need tell myself to be patient a little while longer, to stay with the process a little while longer, and find ways to occupy myself that are benign or pleasing in some ways. And work on being happy with this!

Future Viewing and Predictions (or not)

I continue to get email from people asking about various predictions or some recently publicized “notions of revelation” or yet another YouTube featuring yet another purveyor of falsehoods wrapped in various spiritual-sounding “sweet talk” or extolling ET/aliens who will be coming. Fortunately, no one has bothered me about whether the world will end with the latest Mayan calendar spin, or worries about some new comet thingy.

Okay, there is a set of interesting space events going on around from the second half of October through mid-November and these will likely be preceded and followed by a field of perturbation that affects Earth and Sun. And yes, in first portion of 2013 there looks like we could see a major perturbation of this reality. What occurs from now on (roughly two 2 years) is why the urgency for decoupling from the old and the urgency for addressing your earthly situation in ways that will help support you in the process.

So, from now on what is one to do with themselves? Those who are in nice quiet areas in a happy situation will probably ride out this period fairly well. Book a series of cruises around the world?

Speaking only for myself, this is a challenging thing to deal with since we are now in a temporary situation on a dysfunctional property better suited for dumb real estate tours. Do we make a garden and put in water and backup power? Do we look for a place where we can finally rest? Do both? Time for a swim and some quiet time. Then look at the real estate listings and maps again.

For those who may still wonder, there is virtually nothing I read via Internet or print anymore –perhaps less than 10 websites including weather and space science. Takes me about 15 minutes a day. That’s it. The news is that there is no news. Stop looking outside yourself all the time. Even as more humans begin to look outside the effective stasis they have been in, there will be no meaningful “new news”. The news is that “It’s Over”, just about anyway.

This reality is done for, but darn it if we don’t have a good date to post up.

There are two good reasons for this: One is that the forces that are now moving the vibratory space this entire planet is moving in do not operate by human calendar time and are adjusting things moment by moment in close to real-time feedback. The other is that even with a close idea as to “what and when”, it is essential to avoid interference by the dark forces at all levels they occupy.

To paraphrase an expression from the 1960’s “the revolution will not be televised”. There is no social revolution occurring to overthrow the human or higher dark forces and you can be darn sure that spiritual awakening will not be on any “tube”, just as it is not attained by attending the latest seminars.

As to the various prognostications based upon some interpretations of some notions about someone’s calendar: If any of these seem to “hit the nail on the head” thereabouts, well that nifty. But it really means very little now. From the simplest of perspectives, when you are looking at a narrow window of roughly two years give or take, almost anyone can at least hit the outer rings of such a dart board and thus “look good”. We made advisory predictions over recent years and then stopped since it no longer seemed to matter and had become a waste of energy. Our focus last year was upon what was going on at the higher levels. That is the source of real changes and transformation.

There is nothing of the ordinary human level of awareness that can effect the sorts of genuine changes in existence that are required. What can be done at the human level, especially by those who more spiritually aware, is to find ways to ease ones ordinary life as best as possible while welcoming in the higher energies and consciousness and finding ways to detach and decouple from an existence that is nearing complete collapse. As one does this, one can, when called upon, be of help to others.

No dates could be provided last year, nor can they be provided now. We can only offer our commentary from what we know of these levels in something close to real time and to provide some sense of how long each stage might be taking.

I will say that some predictions, ours included, about human society were off by roughly one year. Not bad actually, considering everything. But it has been a source of puzzlement at times. I would suggest this was mostly due to the level of emotional energy being so great that it seemed as though certain events were on schedule for 2010, but now it would seem as though they are spread out between 2011 and 2012. Other events, such as Iran/Israel not being the center of a WW3 nuclear war were also based upon the high emotional energies being projected both by those advocating and by those fearing such events.

One thing we learned from future viewing enormous earth changes over many years was that many of these things were displaced into a slightly different vibratory reality that was fairly close to this one and that some were of such great magnitude that rippling out effect from the future was still years off. It is still rare to have workable dates available for future viewing these sorts of enormous events. Another reason is that there many influences on earth and beyond working to shape or steer events. And then there are the alterations to the fabric of reality.

At least now we are working on a single timeline. A great bifurcation is appearing, but it is not an alternate timeline, it is a fundamentally different vibratory reality. Of course, the flow of thought and actions may be perceived and processed very differently between these two realities, etc.

So human social-political-economy will collapse and soon enough. The timing of this is still being heavily influenced (but not fully controlled) by the dominant powers-that-be. When they see that their reign is over, they will then “pull the plug” in more obvious ways. Other dimensional dark entities will be coordinating with this.

We have also warned that when you see certain things are really “out of control” such as formerly manipulated commodity prices, currency values, and all manner of secrets seeming to be “revealed” by the media, then that is a sign that the powers-that-be know the game is over and are already “heading for the hills” (or their underground bunkers). It won’t matter much to them anymore and they will know when they cannot do much anymore to favor their own interests.

I know that they know the near term “most probable future”. Despite this, they are obliged to pursue whatever options and marginal possibilities they can find for themselves. Partly this is driven by their belief in random chaos and how their technology can influence a reality based upon probabilities. They really cannot allow into their plans the “possibility” that “reality” is to be dissolved in favor of a reality based upon higher oneness and non-duality.

For now, they continue to maneuver toward all-out war while busily rearranging the global game board. There are no national leaders or national interests to support or oppose. Forget it. It is safe to assume that anyone caught up in that sort of thinking has learned very little about this reality.

What is relevant to my knowing and consideration has to do with the comments on humanity being “on hold” for recent months and the recent events in the higher levels during the most recent weeks.

In the world of future viewing, there is notion of likely future realities. Not so long ago, there were multiple timelines (we have explained this problem in various articles) this was an important factor in future viewing . Hence the development of the concept of “probable futures”. However, this is closely connected with the ontological notions of chaos and randomness and probability.

Such notions, like those about economic patterns, are based upon distorted human insights into the functioning of a distorted reality set-up and maintained by higher dimensional dark forces, often aided and abetted by human counterparts. In the realm of true creation and The All there, it is higher oneness that is the fundamental and primary consideration, not randomness and chaos of a destructive existence spinning out of control.

This period from 2011 through 2013 represents the end of this civilization at so many levels of 3d existence as well at other vibratory levels that interface with this.

The question to be considering is not “what will replace it?”, but rather what is the path of spiritual evolution for your awakening human self and your higher levels of being.

Commonalities will naturally attract or cluster together at various vibratory tendencies. Fields of higher oneness will connect all those that are a part of it.

Welcome to a new spiritual reality!

A Possible Transition Community in “Paradise”?

Greetings!

First a disclaimer: I am not actively planning or working on this now. I am only floating this idea to this group and am drawing from my own process. It is an idea for a transitional cooperative community that would have no planned agenda for its own permanency in any ordinary sense of this meaning. However, I am actively looking at candidate properties that could accommodate us and perhaps another household or two.

Four years ago, in anticipating of what is now occurring in the higher levels as well as the human realm, I floated the idea for a cooperative community in Montana. While there was a good level of interest, there were too few respondents in 2008 and 2009 who had both the interest and money to help found something like that. (Founders are usually necessary to help establish some common infrastructure and to secure land for such endeavors.)

We recently left Montana attend to our own completion and transformational processes. While we could have stayed in Montana to do this, we chose an environment that was warm and relatively tropical. So here we are in our new temporary quarters as we sort through the “stuff” of our human lives and consider what is next for us. And while here we also found a location that still emanates a higher energy than most places.

We love swimming in the warm ocean, eating tropical fruits, growing our own vegetables, augmented by our own mixes of nutritional supplements, and being quiet without external schedules to meet.

Via phone and Internet, I continue to enjoy visiting with colleagues to compare notes on the larger processes and higher levels and to simply share a bit of what is going on personally. Much of this can continue from our interim new location and even from the contemplated next step from here. That is, if we pursue this course.

As readers know, I have no need to promote any causes, debate or fight over ideals, or pursue long term plans for anything in this lifetime on this planet. As I wrote earlier in this “A-List” update, I am mostly done with this lifetime and now only wish to address my own completions while attending to the larger transformation process that is available to me.

So one personal choice was to ease our physical life by moving to a tropical or near tropical location with ocean access and the promise of whales and dolphins from time to time. Other concerns for completing what remains are simply personal. Speaking for myself, I have no idea whether I will be here in ordinary embodied form in one year or three years, or five or ten years. Nether do I care much. I will know when I “get the memo” through my own higher levels. What I do know is that I have no internal motivation beyond my own process and whatever else involves my “significant other” and whatever simple wish-lists items I might have (a list that continues to diminish).

So if you are in a similar mode and wish to have your peace and solitude as well as the possibility of something of loosely supportive community with others who are in a similar mode, then let me know by email (info@pfcn.net).

But first, I would like to offer some reasons not to bother with this notion I am floating here: If you are already well on your way in terms of your completion process, you may not want to disturb your process by undertaking such a major move. If you are still in the mode of “fighting the good fight” and righteous anger over social or political matters, then this is not for you. If you still believe that the “Dark” is/was something created by Creator/Creation for the purposes of learning and teaching humans or Itself, and/or that you still need to learn to “embrace the dark” etc., then this is not for you.. If you are in a state of great neediness of personal emotional, intellectual, and physical support from others to “get by” or “get a lift”, then this is likely not for you either. If you expect to be rescued by ET/aliens or if you are enmeshed with some guru or various doctrines, then best not to bother. As far as ordinary practicalities, if you are worried over access to high-tech hospitals, need to fund a “good job”, obsess over the “right” schools for your children to be indoctrinated in , or need a ready supply of consumer packaged goods, then you are probably not ready for this. So best not to bother reading on. Also, if you live in fear of UV and other solar radiations, then this is not a good locale for you as the UV index tends to be high, even during the “winter” period.

For those who are still reading this, the location I have in mind is tropical. It is an area of wild birds, wind, rain, mountain streams, and ocean. It is an area of volcanic origin and of tropical plant life, not always indigenous of course. English is the main language. The land is relatively unspoiled (emphasis on relatively) and the people who live there for the most part do so because they like being where they are so much. The resident population is modest in number (around 2000 to 3000 people spread out over a large area. Road access to more populated areas is limited and limiting. In other words, it is not a place where you are likely to go driving off once a week for a several hour round trip to the nearest “urbanized” location. And there is the possibility of being temporarily cut off due to storms damaging the road. The locale tends not to be directly impacted by major oceanic hurricanes/typhoons and the most recent volcanic activity was fairly moderate in scope roughly 300 years ago. Its relative geographic isolation also means that if “normal” airtravel is disrupted that leaves only the “slow boat”, and even that mode may become limited in the future. Of course these days anything could happen anywhere so historical tendencies are less and less relevant. For example, there has been relatively low rainfall in the area even though it has historically been tropical. The streams from the mountains are running low. Nevertheless there are still good water supplies, including some underground sources.

It is a warm climate of course but it can get cool at night. Certainly this is a place where children would be welcome, but not it is not a place where the first thing to think about are local schools, stores, etc. and all the rest of the urbanized rubbish that is passed off as “life” for young people. One creates something appropriate for ones environment here.

For me, the ocean, the weather, swimming, gardening, and the inner work is exciting enough. A little socializing for tea and cookies and fruit and even the occasional pot luck is ample social interaction. Buying or trading at the local fish/farm markets also are a mode of simple interaction with others who are well established here.

The area I have in mind offers very few decent places to rent and so most likely would entail acquiring or leasing land in anticipation of the application of light impact dwellings.

One notion I have for ourselves is for a new dwelling styled after traditional pole/stilt structures built up upon on the land and rock. This minimizes material costs, labor, and site preparation while making it easier to handle more of these practical building matters amongst a few people. It is likely to be mostly or entirely “off the grid” including water, power, and waste disposal. It is likely there would be little if any permanent foundations for a new house. Partly this is because we are not concerned for ourselves to establish any permanency or develop a new new economy or social order. That does not mean that would not be cause to create some structures that are suitably “hardened”, as there may well be good reason for this. One example would be a storage and work area building with some type of interior environmental controls. Another might be to house common utilities such as water system and electric generating. Most USA-style “stick framed” building systems are simply not appropriate to this environment here and are excessively costly here. If we were to do this -- and that is still a big “if” -- I would look to adapting some existing light framed building systems that mimic some types of pole or stilt structures and which incorporate galvanized steel with some types of plastic or metal outer skin. Some of these are quite substantial and even include insulated walls and flooring where necessary.

So, this could be a place for people from the A-List who simply wish to have a change of venue for their own process, one set in somewhat tropical environment on this version of earth at this time. Some like snow and the seasons. I used to, but am at a point in my human existence that the effort involved in living easily in cold temperate locales is more than I care to bother with anymore.

For those who find this to be appealing in their “completion years”, consider the practicalities of getting here, being able to contribute toward your needs and to contribute toward some commons of land and infrastructure. If such a project were to come together now, there could (emphasis on maybe) be some possibility for additional people at some later date, once the basics are established by those who are founders. Maybe.

Once again, why bother? Frankly I do not know. I have no really good reasons, and as further disclaimer, I would say that there really is no compelling reason to bother. For me it is a matter of personal choice. For those who might be similarly inclined, it is good to be clear about ones own “completion process”. Are you really done with the old? Are you really done with the illusions and deceptions? Are beyond being angry at all this?

As we envisioned for Montana, the idea for such a simple cooperative effort rests upon simple cooperation for the purposes of making the concluding stages of our respective human existence a bit easier and to enjoy the company of others who have been in consciously “in the queue” for the major changes.

Some of us have not only been “in the queue”, some have also been busy working to prepare a “foyer of the grand theatre” for the transformation process for countless others. So with all the hard work, I consider this a break from all that to enjoy a little tiny bit of the illusion of the promise of a simpler existence, closer to nature, and closer to existing as higher level human, conscious of the human aspects and its respective forms and expression.

Speaking for myself, this is a pleasant enough place to see myself off on the next journey of my larger being.

One of the reasons we left Montana was that we felt “islanded” and engaged in simply too much work. Even though we did have things fairly well organized and efficient, the “efforting” on behalf of an orderly daily life was getting to be too much relative to the larger spiritual-energetic changes taking place. Soooo... if we were to be “islanded” then why not somewhere that was always warm and had warm ocean water to swim in. Ergo...

If there are some in this group who so choose to do something like this in some loosely cooperative manner, they need to be very very clear that there can be no promises of enlightenment or personal happiness. And one should make sure they have money set aside to leave if this really does not suit them well enough.

If this idea actually takes hold with a few here, then you can be sure I will involve myself in helping to “resource” the project with ideas, knowledge, and practical skills as well as being a financial contributor. I am well aware that our present system present initial financial barriers to so many for things like this. However, perhaps this idea I am floating here may lead to something interesting. We shall see.

Sorry, I am not going to name our location or the other one I have been referring to. Not yet anyway.

If the prospect of a loosely cooperative transition community has some appeal or interest to you now, please write me at info@pfcn.net.

May 1 NES Forums Posting

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic,1161.msg5164/topicseen.html#msg5164>

How curious, is it not, that amidst growing chaos, angst, and growing suffering in the human realm, there is a simultaneous emerging of a new state of being and new state of consciousness!

For a growing number of beings, there is nothing more here for them, as to what they may regard as their previous or former personal human state. What little may be retained has little to no influence any more.

For many the changes are gradual, with the new awareness quietly shifting into place. For some there are intermittent physical problems due to the influx of new energies that require their bodies to adjust more quickly than they are accustomed. For others, these changes are in rapid succession, like flashes of lightning, then a quiet period, and it starts anew.

I know there are many who are still confused or distracted by the appearances of what is transpiring in the human realm. There is no need or point to worrying over who did what and when and how concerning “9-11”, secret governments, secret technologies, secret secrets, etc. We are coming to the end of this human civilization, involving human social-political and economic structures and the physical structures of this civilization.

There is no need to worry over the fate of Earth as it too has a destiny and is in the process of enormous changes. There are some who are moving more into their next stage of existence who will be working closely as part of a new earth.

Those who are aware of the difference between the discontinuity of this fallen realm and the dark forces etc., and who are aware of the enormity of the true creation and its higher oneness, know that it far surpasses anything of the imposed limitations of a distorted consciousness that is experienced here. Those who know of this, also know that this existence here has been one of terrible distortion and of falsehoods upon falsehoods. This is effectively ending, never to be repeated.

Despite all that has happened here, the original intention of creation was never extinguished and is developing into something unexpectedly extraordinary.

So, call to yourself your true light and for the true light to call to yourself.

Do what little you need to take care of your human self, to ease your human existence.

There is no need to worry over all these other matters.

While human events seem to involve so many and to such seemingly futile ends, these are only appearances that have no durable substance or meaning.

More humans will eventually come glimpse something of true reality, and some of those will be able to help others see this too, when they are asked for such help.

What matters most is what is being born. Can you feel it?

There is a new existence, a new consciousness, and a new reality emerging. It is also involved in creating what we might call the future. Thus it is not possible to know what has not yet been created, as the vastness of this destiny is such that it can only be known as it creates itself.
