"What is most important, now more than ever, is your inner and outer "completion" as a spiritual self having a human experience.

With this comes the urgency of the high attractor –something that changes as your consciousness continues to expand and your higher self and your lower self become one.

In turn, this becomes ever more intimately involved with the higher Oneness.

... this may occur with imperceptible subtly at first, and yet in a moment, a greater awareness becomes you –and then some."

The Update following this will be #21 and I expect to have it ready in the coming weeks. It is the conclusion of the series of in-depth A-List Updates. It is centered on the following:

- Ascension, Death, and Transfiguration
- The Human Problem – The Problem of the Higher Self
- Additional Remarks on the Correction Energies and the Larger Process Underway

Commentary will continue at the NES forum. In the event of something of urgency for email distribution, I will maintain the present A-List.

We have done our best to explain how things are in this realm, why they are this way, and what is changing and how. This has been one of a rare few published sources in English that has unfolded a coherent set of perspectives on the ascension and transformation process, the nature of reality, the true Light, and the Dark forces.

None of this was written to be “popular” or “sensationalistic” and it has never been advertised. It is not written for those who only want the “quick and easy” and the content has evolved over the years to assist as many as possible in their spiritual evolution.

This work has been intended for those who are serious about penetrating a distorted and false reality to discover what lies beyond and who are serious about their evolution as a spiritual being.

As I finish reviewing my notes and correspondence, new posts will be made at the NES forums. We will try to keep the forum accessible through major Internet search engines.

Thank you and gratitude to each of you for being here!

Tempus fugit
December 22, 2012

Dear Friends and Readers,

Recently I found printed correspondence from over a year ago, yet it seemed to me that not even a few months had lapsed. It also seemed to me that it was barely a year ago I was discussing the coming decade through 2013, yet it was ten human earth years ago according to my computer files. In other words, this represents an increasing (quicken) of the passage of time/events the closer my human level of awareness approaches a major change point. Some portion of my greater being is well aware of this and already well established on the other side of this existential change point. While my human self is informed of this, from my human level point-of-view, I also have an “inferential knowing”. Many are reporting unusual time compression or condensation in their immediate awareness as well as in their memory” of their “past” experiences. Tempus fugit!

Whatever one has come to believe about it, the period around “December 21, 2012” represents a “virtual demarcation” or “temporal marker”. I am watching December 23rd as well as around January 15th for something significant.

Other than being an emotionally charged time for humans and an over-used fear-meme, “2012” is about consciousness and spiritual existence more than anything else –and what it is that has been learned by those spiritual beings who have enmeshed in a human existence here. When I use the term “spiritual beings”, I include the spiritualized human level self, so no one is “off the hook” from giving proper attention to what is Real and Truly important over that which is not.

All of this may be of great significance to some and mean very little to others.

Some will proceed to consciously transcend this reality –in ways unique to each – while some may only abstractly “think” about such possibilities.

Of those who do make these changes, some will continue to be of spiritual service at various levels to the larger transformational process in this realm.

Indeed, it is most likely that the majority of human selves will find spiritual “revelation” once they are no longer in their human form, however this may occur for them.

In addition to the correction energies and all that is related it flooding this realm, the days surrounding “12-21” of 2012 is also a focus of the “dark forces of chaos”. These forces are working from human and higher levels to stimulate chaos and conflict at all possible levels from the personal to the global. I am noting this as a caution, not as something not to jump into imagining to help or out of “curiosity”. Practice detachment. Stop paying attention to the “news” for a while.

Those most connected and aware of the process have been acutely aware of the tangible and stepped up changes they have been experiencing since the latter part of November this year.

If there ever was a time to stay focused on your completion process, higher attractors and to be detached from the apparent social 3d reality, this is it.

This is not a time to misapply these nascent energies and non-duality consciousness (higher Oneness) with an intent to manifest anything into the human 3d realm. There are some teachers who are promoting this and no doubt others will follow on in some fashion as they try new ways to “spin” the falsehoods in 3d of “create your reality”.

This has some correspondence in the higher “as above” levels of consciousness realized there is no basis for any “war in heaven” (as humans have come to phrase it). It is a fundamental incongruity for those of the higher light of the higher Oneness to be in conflict with the Dark. This is something that took a long time to properly understand. While there may be some certain “tactical” and defensive concerns, the process underway is primarily about the dissolution the Dark and returning to the true Light that which originated with it –separating out the “mayonnaise”.

The enormous creation beings which have encapsulated the dark realm are an important element in a process that is reaching into all vibrational states, including those that underlie 3d matter reality.

The “mayonnaise” is getting sorted out in ways that are analogous to consciously removing the underlying source of disease and pain in a human body.

This is a time to allow and encourage the high vibrations of “correction energies” to flow in and through you with no intent or direction on your part. Just let them flow.

From our human point-of-view there will be the tangibility of the next stages of global economic collapse, war and chaos, and big changes in the planetary and space environments, some of which have been described by various researchers and “seen” by some through dreams/visions. But this is only “phenomenal” to the 3d state of attachments. It is like the narrow band of the named electromagnetic spectrum that humanly visible light occupies.

The “correction energies” and its various “agencies” are doing what is possible to literally cut the tendrils of the dark control and parasitization. While this is not “the big transformation”, it does provide additional “breathing space” at the lower levels of human consciousness to take in some of the “new air” that is being introduced via the correction. Similarly those who are oriented to ascension and transformation are receiving another type of “new air” to improve their capacity in transcending the parameters of their existence in this realm.

What is most important, now more than ever, is your inner and outer “completion” as a human self.

With this comes the urgency of your high attractor –something that can change as your consciousness continues to expand and your higher self and your human self become one. In turn, this becomes ever more intimately involved with the higher Oneness. For many, I dare say most, this may occur with imperceptible subtlety at first, and in a moment a greater awareness becomes you.

This is how you will know “Truth” and “Beauty” for yourself.

As you come into a greater state of being, there occurs bridging of vibrational states, even when there is no more physical body to connect through into the lower levels such as 3d. We discussed this in the Feb-Mar 2011 A-List Update – and again more recently with the analogy of an elevator in a transparent glass-like building and being able to view multiple levels at the same time.

In the forthcoming Update, we discuss the supramental relative to ascension and the transformation of the subtle bodies and matter. We also touch on the work of Aurobindo and Mirra who explored vibrational states that lie just below normal 3d awareness, corresponding to what could be called “2d” and “1d”.

Over the years I have preferred to describe the major changes as leading to a existential bifurcation –a change in consciousness, vibrational, state and reality. For those spiritual beings focused on reworking the challenge of individuation into lower densities without separation from true Source, “new earth” would be one descriptor. One version I am familiar with is part of a new creation and it is not solidified in an earthly sense and human levels of individuation from higher level beings have not yet occurred.

I know there it is a dream of many for this earth to be remade into a pristine creation space. While this is very possible, I could not say it is with absolute certainty. Much depends on how the coming years play out in this realm on earth and elsewhere.

Earth’s planetary environment has become too damaged to support healthy life patterns –and humanity as it is presently configured, lacks the consciousness at the human and the higher self to pursue a path of spiritual evolution. At best humans will rebel against how things are being done, but not against the nature of what humans are engaged in “doing”.

Nevertheless, there is a fraction that has the potential to become spiritual human beings and they will be aided by various physical and non-physical beings toward developing this potential.

The Future – An “Existential Bifurcation”

December 20, 2012

How the near term future plays out depends on how the “correction energies” and larger transformation process move ahead. As to human-influenced events such as wars and economic collapse, these are partially limited by a partial foreknowledge by the human shadow power elite of larger events outside their control.

To add to previous Updates concerning the likely near future, I would note that the energy of some high-impact events have been spread out over some months, but the impetus bound up with them has not been expressed fully. In other words, I still anticipate some dramatic high-impact events within the human realm of influence –political, military, and economic. And I continue to expect planetary changes to grow in frequency and magnitude in the period from now into and through 2013.

Various populations of humans are being subject to social and material stress that is growing in severity. It is connected to the larger impetus behind the collapse of civilization, regardless of the particulars of any of the “apparent issues”. In other words, something will give way, like an overflowing dam that suddenly bursts from hidden structural failures.

At the level of ordinary human consciousness, there is such a tension and stress that it should be no surprise when it is noticed that many people will “snap” and go berserk with violent outbursts. In most cases, people will reacting to the social control pressures, not against what it is they do or why, only how. A simple example might be with workplace incidents where employees have become too constrained and unable to express themselves. But as it is throughout human society there is not the consciousness to exist, to be, in any fundamentally different way. This is due to thousands of years of constrained and ingrained patterns that have served to shape the expression of human civilization. Thus it is relatively easy for the social controllers to give people illusions of “change”.

Globally, the human power elite will continue their internal competition while preparing for global conflict intended that is to decide the terms of their own “balance of power” and to reduce the human population to a more “manageable” scale.

As to a longer term view of humans on earth, I have described the most likely possibilities –as have others –and at this point I do not know any basis for any one of these likely “futures”. Much will be determined by what occurs in the coming months and how that plays out over the next few years of human calendar time.

However some sense of this can be inferred from In the essays forthcoming in Update #21, a “cascade of events” is described which will occur during the period described in various schools of human eschatology—something that I prefer to call an embarkation to a more evolved state as spiritual beings.

It will appear as a “cascade effect” for various reasons. Partly due to the influence upon the human level of perception of a compression or condensation of the perception of the flow of time (events) at the human level of awareness—and is closely coupled with changes in ones state of awareness and ones energy bodies.

Expressed slightly differently, as ones awareness expands in all possible ways, it encompasses so much more and slips free of the traction of “time” and the hold of the 3d material realm.

This will also affect many who have never considered the sorts of the things discussed in these pages.

And there will be those who will slip away from all of this, like water flowing away from shore. For them, a new adventure of a new state of being beckons. What involvement they may have in this realm is something unique to them and their greater being to consider. Their “human self” will become a part of their greater awareness and therefore will cease to be—as it may have previously identified its “beingness” when looking out of a human point of view.

To remind those who may read with a “check list” in mind, over recent years, we have discussed a wide range of changes that are associated with the ascension and transformation process. Most of this is still very relevant.

What has changed most since the articles in Global Awakening News is that a high level process has been worked out to support the “prime directives” of separating the dark from the true light and for maximizing the opportunities for all concerned to learn and evolve as spiritual beings from all that has transpired in the fallen realms—and that this process of “correction energies” is reaching into the levels of density at the human level and beyond.

Over the years we have highlighted some of these events occurring in the human social and planetary environments. Over a fairly short period of years a confluence of minor and major “catastrophic” events has been occurring, growing in frequency, duration, and intensity. This constitutes a material or “as below” dynamic which corresponding to a larger pattern of “cascade events”.

Overall, the extant population of humans on earth will continue their attempts to adapt to these changes, usually hoping or fighting for an imagined “better life”. But sooner or later the social and material matrix will fail—planetary environment, social structures and processes of control, human level consciousness will continue to degrade, etc. Ordinary human existence will degrade into some variation of “hunter gatherers” in a landscape that cannot support healthy/healthful plant or animal life.

This will most likely be unfolding over the coming few years, simultaneous with dramatic changes in the state of awareness and 3d presence of those who are focused on a path of spiritual evolution. It is an “existential bifurcation”.

There are many plans afoot among the human global elite and many plans among others not from the human realm –and these plans vary according to the level of consciousness being expressed. Within the human realm, “plans” of the global power elite are not in accord with the “correction energies” and Higher Oneness. And there various facades of social movements, etc. that pretend at “oneness” and “social justice” yet are only new ways to keep the “matrix world order” running at the expense of the naïve and innocent.

In the larger picture, there is nothing anyone can do about the agendas and actions of the human power elites, it is all “so over the top” and beyond the capacity of ordinary humans to change anything substantial. Further, there is so much to lose and nothing to be gained in getting involved with such matters.

This version of human existence is rapidly drawing to a close. With an escalation of the wars and other types of disasters, these increase material and emotional suffering and with that a greater desire for “release” from this existence by many. For the vast majority of humans are unable to lift their sights beyond the narrow limits presented to them by a society based upon falsehoods and insanity.

The control systems are highly adaptable and can accommodate almost anything that does not fundamentally challenge their power or authority. Those who imagine they are thinking of “radical” new ideas are only helping to develop new adaptations of the control systems. Yes indeed.

Those who are spending their time and money and other energies trying to expose what they believe to “real truths” of the global control systems, etc. are not “waking up” anyone in any meaningful way, no matter what they imagine they are doing. There are essentially three categories of responses elicited by these “exposures”:

- Anger and upset, over the latest “issues” they are presented with, is channeled into “acting out” against anyone or anything. Some may even prefer armed conflicts. These responses reinforce the very paradigm they imagine themselves fighting to end. Righteous social justice causes will find appeal here as well.
- Depression and withdrawal into a state of internalized oblivion and escapism. Occasionally this may erupt into external “acting out”.
- Submission and catatonic immobility –making it easy to manipulate and control people. As long as there are calories with which to fill their bellies and something, anything to occupy their attention when they are not sleeping, this would constitute the “masses”, as in described in books such as “1984” or “Brave New World”.

And then there are the new age, self-empowerment and related types who promote variations on a theme of deluded dreams and false hopes for an impossible “golden age” or “you create your own reality”, etc.

Despite all this, it is in the disintegration of illusions of “civilization” that many reject enough of the old paradigm and open to something entirely different and in so doing, perhaps eventually find an opening to a spiritual existence rather than one of endless struggle and suffering. In some ways it is could regarded be something of one “last chance” for so many to gain access to spiritual free will means and thus make a genuine choice, perhaps for the first time in their human lives to seek a new way of being.

Can you think and be aware from your non-human higher consciousness? If not, then the following could further stimulate your process.

- How viable is human social-physical existence?
- To what extent is the human species a viable vehicle for spiritual consciousness?
- What is the state of your own process of internal completions?
- What are your determining limiters to your human existence, if any?
- Can you contemplate your purpose of being in the realm of humans on earth –now as well as in a future period?
- Do you react in any way to all the “terrible news” about the state of the planet and humans? How do you react? Why? How do such responses contribute to your evolution as a spiritual being?

Focus upon your as a “spiritual consciousness”. Sooner or later there will be a breakthrough and higher order of help will be evident.

There you have it.

The New Energies

December 4, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1401.msg5935.html#msg5935>

As the vibrational energies in the 3d range become cleared and heightened, a wide range of responses will be experienced, including intensified anxiety-stress, depression, anger, as well as feeling and being energized in a pleasing way. Feeling high or low, even manic is quite possible. There is no state of mind or body that can be taken as an accurate indication of anything more than major changes in reality. So pay attention to your inner state and higher connection. Conscious breathing is helpful and daily refresh your intention of connection to the “correction energies” and to your own higher being.

Here I would caution against “jumping to conclusions” that all the planetary toxic waste will be cleaned up, as if magically. The greater beings working to clean up the energetic space are, for now, mainly focused on the subtle energy levels and clearing the dark entities from the region immediately above, below, and within 3d. This is providing a little more energetic “breathing space” for those who need it.

What will do you do with your added energy and somewhat improved “breathing space”? This is not for me to tell you.

I will however, repeat my previous cautions against dissipating ones hard-won new spiritual capacities by engaging anything large or small of the dominant human paradigm. Nothing. Just because you have a little more breathing room, does not mean you must attempt to rescue the Titanic as it is already sinking.

Perhaps you can do more to help the situation by setting the example of “taking flight” and perhaps others will get the idea when they notice you. Otherwise, you can have the experience of being with as they grip the ship’s railing. Undoubtedly, there will be those who choose the latter course and will go down with the everyone.

These are the sorts of decisions that are coming. There is no right or wrong. I should add here, that there are already preparations underway to assist those who will be making this transition from the human physical to a different state of being.

Some of us came here to observe, some to assess the situation for the higher learning, and some came here assist in the birth of a new creation matrix (“Baby”). Some did a bit of each. All done now for the most part. Presently some are helping to guide in the balance of the changes which in turn will make it easier for more to “return home” in their own higher level being.

While it is likely that our “eternal essence” (true light) that has been visiting in 3d will have little difficulty rejoining its greater essential being, there is nevertheless the question of what is appropriate to our awakening to our true nature while in still human form. The 3d environment is already a cesspool of all of the detritus and effluent of human society since its founding on this planet. This situation is worsening due to the ongoing insanity of human society and a bio-terraforming process by various agents of the dark.

While it is important to maintain the most healthy and vigorous physical and mental state –as well as our energy bodies, there comes a point of consciously letting go of our human form. This is something we have described in various articles. To most, this is confounded and twisted up with deliberately distorted human beliefs systems about “death” and “life”. And these distorted beliefs are one of the impediments to conscious ascension and accepting the “correction energies”.

For those who sooner or later acquire greater capacities in their energy bodies focused upon the human 3d physical levels, it is possible that some may vibrate out directly or aided somehow. In most instances, however, I would anticipate the advancing self and lightbody letting go of its human biological form.

All this is closely bound up with the lower self –the sub-conscious –that is most associated with monitoring and operating your human vehicle. It will loyally keep you going until... whatever occurs that makes it impossible to carry on carrying “you” in this realm. And this is why we have been emphasizing the importance of ones inner and outer completion, the high attractor, and ones spiritual learning from this realm. A lengthy article on the theme of “Death, Transfiguration, and Ascension” will be ready for circulating in the near future.

The New Energies – Short Update

December 15, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1401.msg5941.html#msg5941>

Speaking of the new being, the new consciousness: It is like the clearest water and most quickly moving fluid that has passed a most sublime filter –I have noticed the start of a stream, it is not a flood yet, but for the first time, I see it moving out of what has been the old and the decrepit into the new and higher vibrational space –this is as seen from that new space. The “cascade events” will hasten this flow.

The “mayonnaise separation” (and upgrading) process is at work! In the earlier “test stages” of this process over the recent years, this has only involved those who made them available for such “experiments”.

There are some “teachers” who are becoming vaguely aware of non-duality consciousness (true higher Oneness). Some of them are promoting (the misuse in my opinion) of these energies in 3d vibrational space, in the human realm – as they give a new “spin” to the falsehoods of this realm of existence and corresponding notions of “you create your own reality”. All this does is to further keep one mired in a decrepit reality, one that is “scheduled” to go away. This is an inappropriate use of these new energies. If you are a conductor/conduit for the “correction energies” it is best to let these flow outward from you with no thought as to their direction or application. None whatsoever.

Previously I have mentioned differences in the experience of the flow of “time”: (see NES post “A Large-field View...”)

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1374.msg5936.html#msg5936>)

“Time” functions differently at different vibrational states of being. One of the effects is that it will seem as though the transformational process will be drawn out from the point of view of consciousness referencing human earth time. At the level of consciousness “on the other side” of the process, there will be an entirely different expression and awareness of “Time”. What I am saying by this is that the “prime directives” which I have described previously under this thread are being given the needed “time” for them to work.

At the human level of existence, “life” as it is referred to, will become increasingly difficult as the level of human material and emotional suffering grows.

This is not some perverse “punishment” as many will subjectively presume, rather it is simply the logical extension of a reality system that, due to its internal defects, is disintegrating. This is the case at all vibrational levels of the “fallen systems”, not just within the narrow sphere of human 3d awareness.

-ASK

And so it is under way...

December 19, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1409.msg5945.html#msg5945>

It is one of the reasons some are here at this time in this vibrational state on this earth.

Suffice for now that there are others now having similar experiences in these recent weeks and months. I anticipate many more to be "lighting up" in various ways. Initially this will be mostly invisible to ordinary 3d awareness as well as to the vibrational ranges "seen" by most clairvoyants.

I will not attempt to give any "name" to this process so as not to diminish this in any way and I will not go into details of how this has been emerging in some, as that too has a limiting effect on these nascent energies that are part of the new creation process and the "cosmic correction" and the associated ascension and transformational process that is underway.

-ASK

And so it is under way...

December 20, 2012

Contemplating how it is we are here now, at this time in this vibrational state on this earth, I continue to find the entire process fascinating and have had glimpses of the process on both sides of the main transformational filtering and processing zone.

To push the envelope of what is possible and to be conduits for the “correction energies” from Creator of All, etc. This further extends the reach of these energies throughout 3d and adjacent vibrational ranges.

To push the envelope of what is possible in ones own light bodies, human and higher level consciousness, and more. Serving the greater process, this also hastens the entire “correction process” which is under way. This is discovered as ones awareness and light fields expand upwards, downwards, outwards, inwards, etc.

Pushing the envelope of the human bio-form, facilitates the process of the transformation of the entire “mayonnaise” mixture that includes “3d matter” in its suspension/mixture. Some may drop their human bio-form as part of this process, while some may pursue the transformation of the energetic-bio-matter into light body as well.

So this all becomes part of the basis to find ways to remain here on this planet as long as it is tolerable or practicable.

“To each their own” is how it works. There is no “sine qua non” or “graduation criteria. There is no failure.

Sometimes, we need to send parts of ourselves “home” and let more of our higher levels descend in to help with the process. In some ways it may for a short while feel like you are “dying”. ...Well, you are in many ways, but not according to any ordinary human conventions.

To those on this path, there is no going back. Moreover, it is becomes ever more essential to be detached from the large and small dramas of the personal and the social/global human realm. You can observe and note what seems to be occurring, but do not react or become personally entangled.

These nascent energies require your fullest and most welcoming attention.

Correction Energies –A Large-field View

Started November 25, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1374.msg5936.html#msg5936>

Note: This is written solely to help our greater understanding as we are now positioned at the edge of a cascade of total changes.

In past essays we have talked about “Prime Creator” and “The All” seeking what may lie beyond its vastness of the enormity of Its being and even greater awareness.

The “Error of the Dark” initially was not recognized to be such a great problem as steps had been taken to recall this to a point before its origination and establish “Time” as a large-scale limiter. However these efforts simply were not enough to catch a hold of all that had already begun to extensively replicate and individuate from this initial moment of mis-creation.

In trying to understand this, it helps to bear in mind that the dark force possessed some (but not all) of the “information” needed to create, replicate, spread and act much like a potential new Creator. “Act much like” is the operative concept, as it was not equal and was missing some important qualities that only prime Creator and The All included in its vastness.

Eventually (after a very long time) it was realized at true Source that this “error” was so distorted in its core impulses that it believed itself to be Source and sought to replace the true Source. Like a growing cancer, this replicating and expanding influence caused a growing energy drain upon the greater All of Creation.

Like an immense amoeba, The All had been collecting and organizing the immensity of energy and consciousness required to extend a portion of itself far out beyond the extensive void that it seemed to be surrounded with. It knows that it is essential that it maintain full connection with this portion of itself (and vice versa) throughout such in extraordinary undertaking.

Meanwhile, the Dark grew to encompass what we have termed the fallen zone of creation, and eventually included entire universes in its distorted model of being. In its own immense spiritual insanity, the Dark effectively set itself on a course to replace prime Creator. From its own diseased perspective this made sense since it assumed that it was the real creator and its way was correct. Along the way, the Dark found ways to reinvent itself, modify and even develop its own version of self-correction. This is what the movie trilogy “The Matrix” describes, regardless of the notions of the story writers.

It was the energy drain of the dark which caused this immense exploratory effort by The All to be limited and obliged an enormous redirection of a portion of its energies and aspects of Itself to address the growing problem. As a microcosm of this exploration process, it is what happens (under ideal conditions) for a larger being to explore detailed levels of existence, especially those of unknown densities. An example of the danger of being cut off by the unexpected is quite evident in this realm where so many beings became mired in a cosmic version of a tar pit.

It is easier to spin an aircraft carrier around on an earthly ocean or rearrange a solar system than to prepare and accomplish such an enormous effort at correcting something of such enormity. At first there were modest forays of highly developed beings into the darkened regions, but many of these became trapped or otherwise sidelined and cut-off due to complex unknowns that were encountered. More and more of the higher level beings were tasked with finding out what happened, eventually the problem came to be understood and some channels of communication established between those “behind the lines” and the zone of non-duality and higher Oneness far outside of the “zone of battle” –for a “battle” it became.

While “errors” or undesirable results occur in the realms of non-duality, these are readily addressed in the context of greater unifying field of non-duality consciousness that permeates the vastness of true Creation.

The Dark governs through conflictual duality where even parts of itself are in “life and death” battles with one another (one of the sources of false oneness). Given the situation, most consciousness operating from higher Oneness had a very difficult time in understanding the intricate complexities of something which it had little or no point of reference for, except perhaps at a high level of generality. So we can see there have been two vastly different sets of playing rules and syntax and agendas.

This resulted in elements of the true Light engaged in battle with elements of the false light –the Dark and vice versa of course. The situations where the true Light was mostly successful was at certain very high levels of Dark where the error could be comprehended and the impetus to proceed along those pathways withdrawn – and of course in those more microcosmic levels where essentially sections of corrupted/damaged creation would be reclaimed through teaching or through their re-absorption or annihilation into true Source.

The topic of “Time” is a complicated one which we have discussed previously in various contexts. So I will limit myself here to merely remind that Time is a consciousness Itself that emanates from true Source. One of the actions emerging from Time is perceived differently depending on the level of consciousness doing the perceiving or experiencing, especially given the broad operating parameters of Time.

“Aeons” can go like a single breath to consciousness operating at a high level while to more discreet expressions of consciousness at lower levels of density (like 3d Earth) it would seem that little or no change has occurred. And indeed, essentially no substantive change has occurred for humans until very recently.

This enigmatic situation, described obscurely in certain ancient human records that are distorted to conform to dark side agendas, describes an endless parade of small and grand cosmic cycles, ad nauseum. This can only support being cut off from the higher realms of creation and lends itself to false creation paradigms that are inserted into the lower levels of consciousness. For example, “it is all god’s plan”, etc., etc., ad nauseum.

I bring this up here because as your consciousness (the one reading this) expands to encompass far more than you might imagine, your perception of time can oscillate between “eternal timelessness” to the pace of time of an earthly human life on a speeding train about to encounter a great unknown. This further can reinforce tendencies toward manic highs and lows ranging from “it is all going to work out fine” to near panic that you are stuck in a situation in which it and you are about to be annihilated.

Does this make any sense?

Tempus fugit. A little more patience if you can manage it.

Where We Are At and the Boundary Layers

October 1, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1401.msg5904.html#msg5904>

Over a long time, until very recently, there have been two energetic barriers: one maintained by the Dark to keep in those trapped here and to allow in newcomers (like a one way door). The other barrier has been outside of that one, a little farther out, and was of the true Light. The purpose of that outer barrier was to prevent the Dark from spreading and infecting any more of creation.

These barriers have been described in many ways by various spiritual teachers and over a very long period of history.

Over the recent several years, major breakthroughs have occurred – as in breaking through. And more of the higher Light (correction energies) has been able to get in to the lower levels within or behind the dark barriers. Rather than decades or millennia as before, this process took merely a few years to complete.

The region above 3d and touching in on the astral (“4d”) region is being cleared and for some it may appear to have been removed, however this may be perceived, it will be a new boundary to contain the darkness that has been more concentrated in the 3d regions from “leaking” or escaping. This represents a new stage in the “correction process” and at times it may feel like the filter of a coffee press pot. If your “inner periscope” penetrates this layer, it might appear to be very clear and void of much of anything, except the Clear Light. To some it might appear to be like the “white light” and rolling waves which are in place to complete the clearing the clearing process and maintain the desired state.

This could lead to large and substantially “safe” exit portals for those who are most ready. The “superhighways” were prepared, but what remained has been achieve safe and widespread enough apertures to the higher levels. But just because someone may say “beam me out” (or whatever comes to mind) does not mean that is what will happen. There are filters in place and we have discussed various dynamics of the overall ascension and transformation process over recent years. So the question becomes ever more urgent as what is truly Real and what ones High Attractor is.

While it may feel and appear to some as if it is “void”, it is not “the void”, nor is it the high level “personal void” I have mentioned that some may find accessible through ones highest levels of being.

When you focus attention mostly to the region under the “press pot filter” (the extant human realm) what is noticed is an increasing proportion of the degeneracy of the dark expressed through human and non-embodied modes.

It was in anticipation of this, we have tried to explain and suggest over the recent years to deliberately distance oneself from what does not serve ones higher spiritual aspirations. Those who have attended to this will be best prepared and those who have not will find themselves in “spiritual emergency” mode as ones own higher process suddenly become a matter of spiritual “life and death” to the more spiritually aware human self.

The present stage should not take very long and is preliminary to a more intimately personal stage in the transformation process. It has been toward this end that much of this writing has been shared, to help with the deeper and broader spiritual Learning and to help prepare those who can develop the capacity to make the largest contribution possible to the larger process.

One may find the need to “hold ones breath” while you adjust your “spiritual snorkel” to get to the “new air” from above. Some may find that their “head” or “neck” is already getting the new air, but the rest of ones subtle body is still immersed in the “dregs and muck”.

That said, consider practicing raising the rest of yourself up toward your higher energetic points –toward the new air. Your own higher level then becomes an interim and convenient nearby “high attractor” –at least until you are out of the dregs and can better set your sights upon even higher attractors.

A little more patience.

Where We Are At and the Boundary Layers Update

October 19, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic,1401.msg5914.html#msg5914>

In earlier essays I have mentioned the presence of some immense beings who have seemingly encapsulated the fallen spaces, and with it, Earth is a tiny speck within their immense bodies...

In that regard, since this first came up, looking from afar towards Earth, it appears as though the planet is now surrounded by substantial beings of the higher light -like the ultimate in antibodies in the human blood stream -and while they are working to clear the vibrational regions above and below that of human 3d, they also await instructions as to what is to occur with this planet and even this solar system, etc.

They are densely packed - looking as if they are radially arrayed to the earth's core, like some giant seed ball.

As it has been for so long, the higher level concern is the optimal transfer of true light (“separation of the mayonnaise”) with the least of losses. The dark is unable to expand further and will be further diminished. Eventually it will be as if the Dark never existed. In the short term, this means that in the human realm and related spaces, there will be a more intense desperate feeding frenzy by various non-human dark forces and which has also infected/affected many humans.

Thus this is to be minimized during the process. How? I am not sure.

So yet another reason to be very clear as to your relations with others and the various organized entities/institutions of human society.

A Further Update to “Where we are at...”

November 30, 2012

<http://newearthsummit.org/forum/index.php/topic.1401.msg5930.html#msg5930>

Other than correspondence, I have needed to be somewhat “quiet” these recent months. While I have prepared drafts of a few in-depth discussions, (probably my last ones for the foreseeable future) it has been difficult to complete them for publication. One reason is that I needed to see how things would be unfolding to the 3d level for anything I write to have more meaning in the present context.

For now, here is a short update to the larger situation, as I see things.

I noticed a few individuals promoting their own versions of a cosmic “correction” or notions of using “non-duality” to manifest human desires –and thus propping up the dark side falsehood that “you create your own reality”, etc. These notions are mostly about trying to bend higher level energies to maintain a false reality. Of course there are still probably a few opportunities remaining to make a deal with the dark side for fame fortune or power. But even these “in-store specials” are running out fast.

In correspondence with some here, and in earlier articles, and NES postings, I have tried to explain the processes that are underway, how it looks, and what one might anticipate from their human level of awareness. As to ones upper levels, some are “on board” but too many of our higher levels are still “out of the loop” due to a (temporary) state of “arrested development”.

In considering any of this, it is best if one finds ways to think and “see” from a higher level or non-human point-of-view. To reference this primarily from a human level yields a bleak outlook. But when one understands this from a higher level, one can then find “high compassion” that does not require reacting to any of this, only noting it and paying attention to the greater learning.

To restate something I have written about before and which bears repeating:

Imagine an immense caring and profound regard that Creator of All has for The All of Itself and all beings within –and that it wishes to take the most care in effecting the needed changes here, at these levels including humans on Earth –an environment which until recently has been terribly mired in an immense and distorted field of consciousness we have termed the “Dark”.

The situation here has been one of the most difficult to correct in nearly every respect. But there has also been so much spiritual learning that has been accrued and so much potential developed.

And so there has been at least two high level “prime directives”:

One is to extricate the most of the true Light from this realm (separation of the “mayonnaise”) from the fallen or Dark zone.

The other is to maximize the spiritual learning of the potentials and problems of lower levels of density, including that which has been learned under the influence of the dark.

To accomplish these directives also requires the liberation of as many evolving spiritual selves a manner that maintains their individuation so they can be reintegrated with their own respective greater beings. This includes of course a portion of those light beings with embodied human presences on earth.

This is all about optimizing a situation that otherwise would have ended in a type of annihilation of the lower levels of existence and the re-absorption of most of the true Light without much of the learning retained. To the higher levels the problem would have been resolved, but too much hard-won spiritual learning needed by so many larger beings would be lost and their evolutionary development substantially delayed.

By the term “learning”, I am of course referring to spiritual understanding of the nature and dynamics of many vibrational levels of existence from the most dense and lowest to the most expansive and highest. This has been made possible despite all attempts by the dark to entrap and control those of the Light in a seemingly endless darkness forever cutoff from the higher Oneness of true Creation. This is something we have discussed in various GA:News articles before.

To restate this, when all is said and done, it will be as if the Dark had never existed and traumatic effects it has had on the beings of true Light will have been totally corrected. But that the future speaking to the present.

Recently we have noticed a substantial clearing of the 4d astral spaces and then greater attention paid to clearing of the sub-basement levels (quite a horrendous situation). This is all part of the “mayonnaise separation” process I have written about. At some point fairly quickly, the mayonnaise loses its apparent stability too quickly and becomes too disordered and confused. In order to achieve as much as possible of the “prime directives”, it is now necessary to advance the changes in the 3d vibrational range and at a larger scale than before.

Previously I described how the entire fallen zone was being enveloped by these immense creation-scale beings and that earth looked like the smallest little speck within their enormous bodies. A few years ago when introducing the incoming “correction energies”, we also described a buffer zone around this planet specifically. More recently this has taken on the appearance of something like a densely packed radial array of energies/beings like a super-dense sycamore seed ball. Fully engaged with the correction energies in the clearing of the regions directly above and below 3d, these entities also provide a buffer zone to prevent the dark side from interfering with the greater correction process. They are also awaiting further instructions as to what is next for this entire planetary system.

Related to this, there are now groups of immense beings moving into and through 3d vibrational space and perhaps they will be more apparent in the near future. This is likely related to whatever is coming next via the correction energies and overall transformational process. I compare their presence to that of a large scale descent of a collective supramental state –something generally not possible on an individual level under the distorted conditions of this world.

While they are developing their structures and forms, they are gaining familiarity with the situation here. I do not know what effect, if any, they will have upon the material qualities of 3d. What I am aware of is that it is the energetic space that is of greatest interest, in effect clearing vibrational space as part of the “mayonnaise separation” process –like the distillation of pure flower essences into a temporary vessel or space pending further refinement and application.

To be a little more plainly spoken, this sorting out of the “mayonnaise” mixture is also closely related to large scale changes to the human global population. As orderly a process as possible is preferred.

Soon I will post a shortened version of the corrections invocation.

Let us attend to our own inner and outer completions process and re-imagine our own unique higher attractors –this could be anything that is beyond your human existence. Perhaps lightbody, perhaps your high attractor is more like a generalized high intention for “spiritual home”, to experience true non-duality being, etc. There is no handy check list or menu to pick from. It is for you to develop your own sense of an interim high attractor. To each it is unique and it is not something immutable, rather only interim to your larger process.

You are a spiritual being that has been having a human experience, be it what it may or has been.

-ASK

P.S.

When I say that these immense beings will be more apparent, this will most likely be something noticed by sensitives through their inner seeing. Eventually they may well become more apparent to ordinary human visual sensing.

An Invocation, An Intention, An Attention

Every evening before retiring and during the day as well...

(Slightly improved version)

* I call upon my lower, middle and higher self. I call upon my highest source origins and my connection to the highest levels of true Oneness and Creator of All.

* I invite and call in the fullest extent of the highest of the correction energies to enter and descend my entire being down to my human levels and beyond.

* I invite and call upon the fullest extent of the highest of the correction energies to enter and flow through the space between my atoms and create and maintain a continuous flow through the entirety of all of my being.

* I call upon the correction energies to clean, clear, or dissolve any and all dark side influences in my being at any and all levels of my existence.

* I call to me all the particles of the true light in my being as the particles of true light in my being call me to them.

Ask and allow these energies to flow through you. Do not “direct” or intend them in any manner whatsoever. These energies have their own built-in “guidance”. Just let them flow through you. Over time your own capacity will grow and so will the process of the larger changes that may concern you and the totality of your own greater being.
