February-March 2011 – Update #11 - Introduction

“You are more than your physical body. You are part of a much greater soul being. Your higher being and all of “You” carries the divine spark of true creation.”

15 March 2011

Dear Readers

Rather than wait to finish the entirety of this, I am sending out this initial “letter”. It includes a bit of a summary introduction and various thoughts I wish to share now. Perhaps the most important thing is that everything is on a faster “track” than it was in January and that the “tracks” are being laid as we proceed. I cannot emphasize enough the need to keep your wits and critical discernment while welcoming the higher energies.

Recent solar storms, the Japan “nuclear earthquake” situation, the level of fear, panic, and paralysis has gone up an order of magnitude. Yes, do pay attention to what is important. I can only remind everyone to do their best not to feed into this (and not to feed off of this) and work on developing a type of “calm alertness” as you go about your daily activities. As to “paralysis of inaction”, I can only suggest to proceed as you were. If you are buying land, starting a community, planting a garden, then why not proceed ahead with “calm alertness”. After all, none of us has a calendar of “major events”.

The “main event” is internal to your psyche, your higher self, and your energy bodies.

For the near future, the A-List “Updates” will be erratic at best, and so this is a concluding issue for the time being. This is partly an energetic concern as it is much more important to focus more on the inner work and the larger changes. There are also some urgent practical matters we must attend to now. Therefore, it is important to check the NES Forum from now on. Link to forum: <http://newearthsummit.org/forum/>. If you scroll down under the main board lists, there is a listing of the most recent 50 or so posts in descending date order. Just click on the subject title of a post in the index to read it. This makes it easy to see the subject headings of new posts. Over recent years, the NES Forum boards accumulated a significant body of information concerning many facets of spiritual evolution and the breakdown of this reality.

The pages of New Earth Summit Forum and Global Awakening News have been an evolving “mystery school” bridging ordinary and non-ordinary. Over time, we have discussed the difference between the split existence in this fallen realm and that of true creation and its state of true oneness that exists without conflicting polarity. It is possible to examine and to test for oneself most that we have presented over the recent years.

We are entering into a new stage of the “correction energies”. It has taken very long from our earth-based point of view for this to arrive at the human level existence. It is why many undertook great risks to be here now with a human form, to help, to participate, to further their spiritual evolutionary learning. For those are connecting with these new energies, there is a growing awareness of new possibilities beyond the ordinary 3d realm.

We have explained most of what we feel has been necessary over the recent years and again encourage people to sit with this material, perhaps beginning with the more recent Updates and going backwards through them and Global Awakening News material. There is more to the writing than simply words and sentences. We have done our best to be direct and clear in what we have so freely shared. Everything is freely available under the “Articles and Bulletins” section at the www.pfcn.net website.

For those who missed the January Update, simple “intentional meditations” are woven throughout it.

If and when there arises a strong need to send out a new A-List Update, we will do so. This would most likely pertain to new insights into the transition process underway and the “transfer of consciousness”. If we find any new practices that will assist in this process, those will be conveyed as well.

The main purpose here has been to elucidate the key principles and underlying dynamics that most influence the human-earth existence and this portion of creation that has fallen under the domination of the dark. Once you grasp this, it is easier to deconstruct the falsehoods and to construct that which will serve the growth of what is aligned with new creation.

Along the way we have tried to describe the nature of what most distracts and misdirects us from connecting with true Source and our true Nature.

It has been one of my varied roles to help remind us all as to the nature of this 3d reality as well as the greater reality we have projected ourselves into. The 3d earthly world is no longer a relatively pristine “frontier” for unconscious and avaricious humans run amuck as they declare their control over greater or lesser portions of the planet.

Changing the nature of social-spiritual relations among and between humans has been exceedingly difficult and now includes dangers that have been created through an avaricious and predatory existence that has little or no resemblance to the original intention for the human vehicle. These difficulties and dangers are both material and non-material.

We are now in a period of increasing earth changes relative to the planet and the space this solar system moves in.

Over the last three years, anyone who has seriously been paying attention to thoughtful and well-informed future projections has also been repositioning their lives to make it easier to decouple from the matrix social disorder.

Those who have ignored early warnings and various indications that have been plainly visible will have difficulty coping. Those still hoping for a systemic “reform” will be in for a shock. Those who have found creative ways to remain asleep and in denial will likely not know what happened, until they pass on from their human lives. Recently, I have tried to explain the main patterns that are operating at the national and global levels of humans, patterns that are leading to new levels of international warfare.

For some, repositioning of their human lives has been mainly a practical concern, for others it has been to support their connectedness to the higher creation energies that are streaming in. In rare instances, some people have addressed both though the development of cooperative conscious communities that also offers mutual support for the larger spiritual changes.

It matters not whether such communities have a long or short duration. What matters most is the quality of intention and attention among one another and their connection to higher source energies.

It was not easy to stop and write the end of January letter on the false social “awakening” and to then prepare subsequent postings through February for NES Forums concerning the world situation (<http://www.newearthsummit.org/forum/>). However, this was a response to the manipulations around various recent human events that have been siphoning off nascent spiritual energy and dragging many back into the matrix control system.

There is much to distract you these days, such as false claims of an alleged “social revolution”, a non-existent “economic recovery”, or the imminence of a nuclear weapons exchange. Too many people are getting caught up social issues and conflicts that are too little-too late, irrelevant, or simply counterproductive to the further evolution of humans. For those who still pay attention to various channeled nonsense, there continues to be the endless claims of ET’s rescuing humans from certain doom or that all is “love and light”, and not to worry about anything.

With the most recent earthquake destruction of parts of northeastern Japan and the loss of much of a major city in New Zealand, come renewed concerns over instability of the planet for human habitation. At first this will appear in seismically active areas. With increasing solar and space energies, additional stress will influence many people to be more out of their bodies than usual as they wonder if these might really be signs of “the end”.

It is likely there will be announcements in coming weeks that attribute new levels of economic catastrophe to the Japan earthquake. These economic catastrophes would be occurring regardless. Just thought I'd mention it here for those monitoring such things in their spare time.

- /// -

Whether one responds to all that is in the human plane with a fearful “white knuckle grip” or with naïve “hopeaholism”, the trajectory of our spiritual evolution, ascension, and transformation has nothing in common with the dark forces control system or their counterparts, the human powers-that-be. And it has very little to do with the state of the human civilization. This latter point is very important to bear in mind as you read on.

What remains for most is to attend to their summation of important lessons learned here from their own human experience, that of the human collective now, and that of the sweep of human existence here under the dark forces.

There is some urgency to attending to “completion” of ones human self, including addressing whatever “unfinished business” there is. This can further assure there is nothing of significance to distract or to energetically attract one backwards into the lower levels.

Without a strong sense of your spiritual self, it is easy to get caught up with “end of the world” thinking and emoting, or caught up with the various titillating notions about secret space colonies, ET's, secret powers, ancient mysteries, or the various shadow powers. This serves little to no useful purpose except to help assure you pass on from your human life mostly as an unaware self, caught in endless “entertainments” of the matrix world. Please stop. Once you are solidly centered and oriented, it is possible to observe what is afoot in the old world and yet not get caught up in it anymore.

There are two “realizations” occurring with many now: One is that the ordinary reality of humans is based upon endless falsehoods and there is no thing from within the dominant human realm that will solve the deep problems that exist. The other “realization” occurring is that the awakening human “you”, potentially is a seed or core element of a much larger spiritual being and perhaps even a seed element to new type of spiritual being. This latter Realization cannot develop without reconnection to the higher oneness of true creation.

Eventually one arrives at the simple understanding that your ordinary human life can end tomorrow or the next year, or the next, and from any number of factors that you cannot control. Some arrive at an understanding of the terms of their human existence and a rare few find it possible to consciously leave when they are truly ready.

What is most important –especially for those who are most spiritually oriented –is to be clear as to what is most important in your human existence. What takes precedence? Your ordinary human existence within the parameters of human society, etc. –or your self as an awakening spiritual being, coming into connection with a greater state of being and consciousness.

Within the context of spiritual evolution, it is possible to maintain something of what is most important to your human existence, but the converse is generally not possible. Hence it becomes a matter of what priorities you chose. For humans who have very little understanding of any of this, or who have turned their spiritual consciousness over to religions, dogmas, and gurus, this may read like a meaningless puzzle. The more you chose spiritual evolution, the more you gain a greater capacity of true free will and greater freedom.

Once one understands the nature of the basic paradigm and the nature of the falsehoods, most of one’s development can proceed without the myriad of classes or workshops. One can and should take charge of oneself and become self-referencing. Be conscious as to why one is doing or thinking whatever it may be. Ask yourself how it is what you are doing or thinking helps serves your spiritual awakening.

The main focus and concern here are with those who are moving into a spiritually awakened state. Hence my lack of interest in following all the “high dramas” of human society. They are all manipulated by the dominant powers and there is no need to lose ones energy with any of this. Especially for those who are more spiritually conscious.

This conscious awakening presently involves a fraction of one percent of humans. Potentially this could shift to one to a few percent. These fractions are relative to my perspectives and are potentially changeable. I mention this here only as a reference to relative proportions. Much depends on how well those who are awakening now stay with their awakening process, or whether they become distracted into the various machinations and falsehoods of a dying existence.

To reframe this fraction, if one out of one thousand humans achieves this state of awareness and accumulates higher level of collective learning while embodied, it will be an enormous achievement of immeasurable service to all. And this would be despite all the dark forces have done on earth and at the higher levels to prevent this.

As an extreme, if one out of one million achieves this Realization, then it would still be of immeasurable service, even for those who do not reach this point during the period remaining for their human existence. Perhaps you who are reading this are one of those?

- /// -

There is no amount of extreme contrast, mass death, destruction, etc. that will turn human consciousness. It will only drive it further to raw survival or despairing hopelessness. During the bulk of the 20th century, roughly 10% of the world population died from ongoing wars. During the period of the “great depression” and “dustbowl” roughly 10% of the USA population “disappeared”.

There is no magic number for a “critical mass”. In retrospect, I doubt there ever was such as thing as a “critical mass” no matter how it was defined, or by whom. It was only a noble aspiration that reflected some innate potential.

When some saw the possibilities years ago of those awakening to “take some of the planetary population along”, this too was a noble and high sentiment, but one that was in alignment with some very high level plans.

As one of the earliest to express and shape what “global spiritual awakening” could be, there was also an awareness of a “new earth”, a higher vibrational earth. This is also related to our recent expression of a version of this earth occupying a different orbital position than this present earth does.

For those who are developing this nascent spiritual energy, it is essential to stay focused on awakening to what could be termed a “partially ascended state”.

This opens up avenues for a “transfer of consciousness” to the next levels up.

Those who are shifting into this state are also in a position to do a great service in helping from various levels so that many more can continue their own movement in the same general direction. As this capacity grows, even more can recognize what else there is for their existence, other than the distortion of the ordinary human sphere of awareness still within a dark control realm.

There is an “event horizon” coming visible. I do not know its timing of arrival in human calendar terms, but it is “incoming”. It is as if you can see a massive “something” approaching. For those who have moved on ahead, even only a little, the initial effects of this transformative energy can be felt. We wrote of its approach in 2007 in discussing the general process and of ascension and transformation. (See Transformation and Ascension section at <http://www.pfcn.net/napsum-bul1.html>.) This material also describes some of the major features of the process as well as the problems that have occurred in bringing this to the human level of 3-d existence. Under the section on Creation, Cosmology, and the Big Picture, we discussed more of an overview of the situation, especially in the August 2009 material.

- III -

One question for those who are ready willing and able (or at least developing such capacity) is how they will attend to their human existence now. Not later, but now. Will they continue to be distracted by the false promises of the “matrix world” that seeks to control them, their children, and all humans? Or will they take steps to more fully disengage, find ways to ease their material life, and find ways to support one another’s process.

Knowing of the dark-light distortions, knowing of the higher oneness that is beyond the dark control realm, this is the basis for a major spiritual leap in evolution.

To all those who can muster the capacity, what is most important now is reconnection with the higher light, the higher oneness. This is beyond polarity, it is the realm of no polarity, only that of the higher oneness and infinite diversity.

While we do not need to become embroiled in the light-dark drama, it is essential to at least understand what has occurred in this realm that has held so many soul beings enthralled for so long and prevented human level of consciousness from evolving.

Once one knows the difference and understands what is going on here, there opens new possibilities to transcend all this, while retaining the knowledge and deep learning of what went wrong here at all levels, including human 3d.

Without true realization of the dark force implications, those who opt to leave here prematurely do so not having completed an important element to their higher level being, soul being. This is one reason why so many soul beings are here now –to take advantage of this one major opportunity before it is no more. For vast majority who do not reach such a point of “realization of truth”, there will be ample opportunity to “catch-up” on what they missed once they transition to a new level of being.

This will be the case for the majority that have a human presence here, but there are opportunities available at the “next level up” to “get the picture” and thus still be able to move in evolving as spiritual beings. After all, we have all been working here against the greatest of unfavorable conditions. So this is another way of saying that it is a “no fault” situation if you miss out at your human level. But for those who do, they are substantially closer to entering a whole new level of evolution.

- /// -

Those who are finding themselves in a higher order of awareness will likely be finding new possibilities they could never have imagined previously. These new possibilities may or may not involve maintaining ones physical human embodiment.

The power of clear intent and attending to said intent is of preeminent importance now. There are no magic formulas, mantras, rituals, or whatever that can substitute for the power of clear intent when it is focused upon evolving into highest order of consciousness and existence possible in any given context. This is an “as above” counterpart to the “as below” version that guides one to achieve the highest level of commonality possible in any given context with others.

Intend for your connection to higher self, higher oneness and the light of true creation. Call to your awakening self that which is of your true light. Require that the higher creation energies or correction energies filter and clear you of any and all influences from the dark. Your higher self is reaching “down” to help awakening human self, your awakening human self is reaching “up” and an energetic “handhold” takes place. Call your true light to you. There is nothing of the dark that you need or you ever asked for.

Let us distill and retain for our selves and soul beings what has been learned here in this realm. It is of immense value in helping to guide the next attempt by creation expressing itself through a human form upon a new earth within a renewed and changed creation. This is transcendence. This is part of ascension.

Disinformation and the Spreading of Fear

A Word-to-the-Wise

The WWW is not facilitating a “global consciousness revolution” to occur, nor is there any “global social political awakening” occurring. Such notions are mostly order-of-magnitude amplifications of the old falsehood that electing a different political party/leader will “make a (positive) difference”. The Internet and WorldWideWeb (WWW) is not the basis for any “global consciousness shift”, nor is it facilitating one. It never was. The WWW and Internet does, however amplify and propagate existing social control memes and thus serves as the most efficient social control system since the advent of television news on behalf of the global elite.

As always, it is the essence and content that makes the difference, regardless of whether it is calligraphy or email or web postings. Thus we can take advantage of these modes of communication for purposes such as what you are reading now. But this is rare, extremely so. Soon enough, the Internet will become more erratic and unreliable due to planetary changes and political agendas of the elite.

There are more and more disinformation sources publishing on the Internet and as global tension increase, the easier it will be to nudge people into dangerous reactions. This applies to manipulations concerning social, economic, and political changes, as well as to manipulations about changes in the earth and space environments. News recycling sites solicit and pay for copy on specified themes and with no serious verification, of course. There are services that hire out radio-call-in “talent” on behalf of talk shows to help their on-air presence in spinning certain topics as required. The meme controllers deploy sophisticated software that manages fake online identities that enable one “handler” to manage hundreds of virtual identities.

While it is easier to disregard much of the manipulated turmoil and thus spare oneself the headache of bothering to hear all the versions of “who shot first” or “who is right and who is wrong” etc., there is no excuse for propagating unsupported fears and wild speculations as if they are intelligent reports.

One ongoing example has to do with outrageous fear-mongering concerning solar data. Of course certain things will be concealed from the mass public. But it is not possible to trick hundreds of thousands of private/amateur astronomers all over the world who have sophisticated equipment at home and who talk to each other. This is the worst form of a “chicken little syndrome” and it is dangerous and irresponsible to participate in such behavior.

Another recent example has to do with claiming inside knowledge of the secret government about a major earthquake in the New Madrid fault zone in the USA in about one week. Most of these sources are known liars and disinformation agents who specialize in fear mongering. These are not merely “crazy people” trying to attract attention to their own selves, these people are part of a closely monitored process for manipulating mass emotions and beliefs. This is Internet-based social engineering at work. The more “unstable” you are, the easier it is to nudge you one way or another –and this process works very nicely when masses of people are mobilized into a state of chaos and conflict. These sorts will also play/prey upon you as they will readily promote “love” and “don’t worry” vibes. Some of the non-human dark side elements are perfectly fine extolling various iconic names and figures such as Jesus, Buddha, etc. and promoting “love” and “peace” and “heart”, etc.

And then there is the ongoing nonsense about “economic recovery”, etc. There is only one situation that would cause a new economic paradigm and that would be the consolidation of global power by the global elite to an unprecedented scale. Likely this would be attended by inexplicable disappearances and deaths of high-profile individuals. The outcome would be some nightmarish techno-fascist society resembling an eclectic combination of any number of book and movie plots. In nearly all highly industrialized countries a techno-fascist society has already begun to emerge. However, I anticipate that changes in the planetary and space environments would preclude such a scenario from coming into full force.

Yes, hundreds of millions of people all over the world will be protesting intolerable living conditions, battling each other, battling military and police, etc. But for all practical purposes, they have no capacity to do anything about what it is they most protest. All the energy that is dissipated (wasted) in public protests could “potentially” be channeled toward new cooperative modes of existence. But the entirety of humanity has no capacity for such cooperation. Humanity is profoundly trained and oriented to focus on the self, the family, the tribe, the continuity of ones genetic material, and to seek a life of pathological illusions. Everything has been cleverly focused upon a mindless replication process to provide labor and various forms of energy for the controllers –human and otherwise. And so it is that this is only a “potential” –one that cannot be realized or reified given the state of consciousness that dominates.

I have already written much on the problems of “exopolitics” and the confusing alien/ET question. Suffice to say that those most loudly advocating “disclosure” are mostly playing into agendas of the powers-that-be. Then there are those most keen on drawing our attention into various alien conspiracies or the converse, that aliens are all benevolent. And then there is that sticky “alien invasion” situation.

Enough on all this for now.

Transformation and Ascension Processes

Changes in Consciousness, Changes in Existence

By Alex Kochkin

*What is most important now is spiritual transformational change.
That is all there is.*

These changes that are taking place are causing me to be happily humming away on and off nearly every day. And yet I still hear the cries of countless humans. Like so many babies, each with varying discomforts and pains, and so much pain that has no earthly release. From afar each is looks like a cell in an unorganized undifferentiated being. This new being will not be born here on this earth, but elsewhere-elsehow. This coincides with the ending of the pain and suffering.

Seven billion humans are spread over most all reasonably habitable locales on this planet. There are no more earthly “frontiers” to expand and stimulate more expansive growth. Nearly eighty percent are concentrated in coastal zones. Under the present mode of existence, an enormous and growing portion of the human population is suffering various material problems of hunger, war, disease, droughts, floods, and a dangerously poisoned environment. This is attendant with growing trauma and mental degeneration from many sources.

There is no “global social revolution” occurring, there are no hypothetical “alternatives” to supporting the existing population and certainly no potential capacity for more. There are no “technological fixes” that will substantively change the present situation.

But this is not a matter of population numbers, rather it is about a distorted existence from which there is no ordinary means for humanity to solve the material problems it faces. Of even greater significance is that there is not a sufficiently widespread distribution of spiritual consciousness from which true wisdom emanates. Hence there can only be highly localized efforts for conscious cooperative community, some portion of which might contribute to additional humans achieving an awakened state of consciousness.

Even as the powers of the dark are removed from the “as above” and “as below”, there remains nevertheless their powerful influence within the sphere of humanity itself, like a toxic residue or a “trojan computer virus”. We are nearing the proverbial “end of the line” as far as ordinary human existence goes. I can only reference what I have written on this previously: A confluence of major events involving solar, space energies with the atmospheric, crustal and core systems of Earth. This will make the catastrophic 2011 global economic crash insignificant.

As some are seeing it, there is an “event horizon” that represents a “process interface” beyond which the clearing and transformational process has mostly been completed. This is a moving event horizon, not fixed but it appears to be incoming relative to our time and space as we appear to be “moving” toward it.

Consider the possibility that we are approaching the end of human tenure on this earth. At least for the present version of human.

Presently there is a heightened awareness and worry over any number of “major events”. Let’s list some of the major ones: tsunamis inundating coastlines all over, the GoM fracturing, major volcanoes erupting, destructive tsunamis and other oceanic events, incoming objects from space, destructive solar radiations, crustal slip/shifts, nuclear radiation from wars and reactors gone amuck, global pandemic deaths from disease, droughts, floods, economic impoverishment, and food starvation linked to any number of these events. The list grows each week in specificity. From what some have seen in looking ahead a little, most all of these are high likelihoods, and the question becomes one of degree or scope of effects.

Today, growing numbers are worried and preparing for their own personal survival. Some are worried about the survival of the human species.

Ultimately, there is the spiritual existence question of your very being as a human that points the question of “why and where for” of your human existence and your true nature as a spiritual being. These are the important considerations. As these become clear, then gradually one can exercise a greater measure of true free will.

Until that occurs, one is running on an automatic program that has been implanted and managed by various human and other dark forces. This programming is replicated and reinforced by humans within this closed operating system and thus it is self-generating, until new program parameters become introduced by the “system operators”. –Or until the system operators and the program are removed.

It is a major achievement, full of trepidation at times, to come to realization of the nature of reality. It is then that one begins to discover for oneself new possibilities for ones existence beyond the human social-physical vehicle.

Then the question becomes what comes next? For some, there is an interim period of malaise or depression as most of what was presumed to be true or worthwhile turns out to be false or irrelevant. Yet with persistence, new possibilities enter into your awareness as your awareness expands to encompass more than the human “you”. Dropping into a nether zone between worlds however, is not a beneficial place to reside.

At this point there is little need or interest in focusing on all the “entertaining” ideas and dramas that occupy so many these days as they imagine they are exploring the fringes of reality. The term “fringe” here is very apt since it implies that one has not yet made the connection to what lies beyond the dark control realm. One can spend a lifetime exploring all manner of actual and concocted “mysteries” but they are all part and parcel of some portion of the dark control system either from the ancient past or present. It is like studying some concocted religious texts to try to extract some truth from all the distortions. Why would anyone do this if they understood something of the truth of this reality. It is like settling for few crumbs on the floor and missing the real feast.

There are two main fairy-tales of matrix-addicted “hopeaholism” –one is that things will get to a point and magically enough humans will somehow decide to change the system –the other is that the “ET/aliens” or some other “savior” will come and fix things. In between these are other notions, such as “free energy” will what changes everything, etc.

It is all about the state of spiritual consciousness not technology or saviors or human social-political belief systems.

It is very likely the process of clearing and transformation will take a few years to fully involve all humanity. It is also likely that a large majority of the present human population will be gone due to a number of imaginable and unimaginable effects. The distorted situation here within a fallen realm cannot be corrected by human level efforts. Given the entire situation, human society cannot be transformed until the old is removed.

This is my assessment, plainly stated.

Trauma Aperture

With growing stress and trauma, people tend to develop “hair-trigger” reactions that bypass what little discernment remains. This dynamic is readily manipulated by various disinformation and other social control sources. This applies to all manner of concerns from ET/aliens and the sun “disappearing” to nuclear war and social revolution. With so many people “on edge”, it is no wonder that it is easy to engineer and stir up all manner of public responses.

So many people are now understandably protesting against their deteriorating human lives all over the world. Without realizing it, most are objectively demanding to be restored to a synthetic “matrix life” that never belonged to them in the first place.

This stress and trauma creates a situation that could be called a “trauma aperture”.

As the stress and trauma levels grow, the “aperture” through which new information can be accessed narrows. Even when presented with cogent information, it is as if people can no longer hear and no longer think. They lose what capacity they had to take in new inputs. With increasing stress and trauma, the human self and its energy bodies become taught and constricted.

It often takes overwhelming external events shatter this shell.

The preferred relief for this is to dissolve from within and this is accomplished through inner connection to higher self or higher source.

Event Horizon and Building New Runways

As we described in other articles on transformation and ascension, there will be those who move on ahead and yet continue to be of service in various capacity. Some are humanly embodied some are not.

Some are focused on the human-earth side of the transition, some are focused on the next levels beyond. There are also those who are very conscious of all this and who will be staying on in human form as long as it is appropriate and tolerable to them. Many of these will work with the dynamics of planetary and energy changes and help those who have been forming “islands of light” on earth.

This process reminds me of modern train machinery that creates railroad beds and lay tracks railroad tracks. Or perhaps more like creating a road or plane runway through rough terrain. The runway keeps growing in capacity, more humans are finding it and moving toward it. Yet those initially entering the “takeoff lanes” are continually distracted by memories, illusions, and the dramas of human existence that they keep drifting off the pathways. Imagine “herding cats”. Gentle and clear reminders are needed initially and continually. Eventually the participants “get with the program” and some begin helping others.

While it may be the practical end of this version of humanity, there is still a notion of the continuity of some portion of present day humans. But those who remain and who will do well cannot be focused on survival for its own sake, “competition of the fittest”, or private wealth accumulation in whatever form. Neither can they afford to identify with the various social control memes and various false belief systems or their respective “past” in this lifetime. Connection to higher oneness and higher self will be an important matter as will be the development of higher abilities –all to lay the basis for a new type of existence with this planet and beyond.

The “event horizon” represents both a boundary zone after which a new reality is being created and a moving wave that would seem to be moving toward this point in time, dissolving and transforming all as it approaches. This is the transformational or correction energies.

No one can point to a human calendar timing for an event that appears to moving both forward and backward through time. Much is being attended to as we move along a new time-space continuum. To paraphrase what we wrote in 1993 and later, the “awakening” is an endless of process of creative discovery as it develops itself.

This is imminent enough within our present lifetime on this planet.

What Has Been Gained Or Learned?

What have you learned of value to your evolution as a spiritual being, what have learned to value of your evolution as a spiritual being? What have you learned from the present human existence, and what have you learned from the totality of human existence here. There are no right or wrong answers. Yet the extent and qualities of such learning is important to ones evolution as a spiritual being and that of your associated soul being.

What is most important to ones existence now? I would proffer that it is attending to “completion” of ones existence as a human. What unfinished business needs attending to? These are truly important questions. Human belief systems are limiting even upon transition from the body. These too need to be assessed as part of this process.

And if we can enjoy cookies and tea or coffee on the veranda in a supportive environment, then even better! It is time to graduate ourselves to the next level.

The control system cannot and does not promote choices for your evolution as a spiritual being. It can only promote variations on a predatory existence driven by fear and manipulation. Those of humanity who do not develop a spiritual consciousness and spiritual understanding can only default to the options presented within the control matrix. Make no mistake, this was not part of some “divine plan” deliberately set up for your “education”. Such notions originate from dark side memes.

There was a spiritual mini-awakening during the latter half of the 1980’s through the mid-1990’s. Many who were most keen on greater oneness, god-self realization, divine mother, and healing, were for the most part missing a crucial element. Without a clear understanding of the existence and nature of the dark forces and the problems of duality and polarity consciousness, it was not possible for most to achieve the next stage of spiritual awakening.

Polarity Consciousness

In order to transcend polarity consciousness, you must understand it first. In order to transcend the distortions and falsehoods of this existence, you must first understand their nature.

For those who are coming to understand a greater reality and the basic problem of this distorted and limited reality, there are no sides to support or oppose. To do so would be catastrophic to the nascent spiritual energy they are developing.

For those who understand and are growing into, their realization of the transfer of consciousness will be found to be something of great service to all.

Despite my attempts at qualifying this carefully, too many will still interpret this existence as a “failure” or revert to the false dichotomy of “half empty versus half full glass” and not see the great transcendence that is before them. When they do, they realize there is no half empty or half full, indeed, indeed there is no more “glass” at all with which to contain false dichotomies.

Many will ecstatically surrender to “higher oneness” as they encounter it. Yet, it will be those who “Know”, who have “Learned what is to be Learned”, who will be ready for the next stage in their evolution as a spiritual being. They will be able to help many more to make the transition from “here” across the chasm to “there”, a new world if you like. Where the chasm is the least is where there will be the most transition at first. Eventually much of this gap will be bridged so that many will cross easily. Imagine a 20-land runway spanning these different levels of existence.

“Reports from the Field”

In earlier material we discussed the possibility of the dissolution of 3-d as a last resort in the event the correction process was unable to complete itself. So far so good and things seem fairly well on track since last year. So this is good news.

Some noticed over the recent one or two years more of a separation between their human-self level and their higher-self level. To some it seemed as if this was an attempt to provide a more localized “high attractor”, like encouraging new muscle through reaching and stretching. During this period some were wondering if they even had a higher self.

Consider also the possibility that your soul being was temporarily taken “offline” for repairs, clearing, and upgrades to prepare to be “made new”.

Others found they had a more unified experience in which the human self was sharing in a larger awareness of a larger being and vice versa.

Aches and pains can become very uncomfortable at times as our various human body systems are switched over to new modes of operation. Some of this is a response to the changes of the planet. Lately it has become difficult to sort out all these strong sensations.

Some of this is also a response to a process of separating out the consciousness of the awakening “you” and so there is a reduction of the spiritual energies that required to run your body.

This is also related to learning how to consciously leave ones physical body. There comes a point when the lower levels of self that have more a connection to physical existence can look forward to a new adventure. This results in a cooperative relationship of most of your human self. But if your lower levels of consciousness are still getting the signal to “keep slogging along” they will faithfully continue to run the physical body until health or other crisis precipitates a major breakdown.

For various reasons, often misguided, many spiritual psychology systems set one portion of your human self against another portion of your human self. This tends to reinforce a polarity situation that usually does not have a happy resolution. Why would part of “you” want to “kill the ego” when the ego self is so connected to the central self of you? Ego self is a facet of the spiritual individuation experience for your larger soul being. It can be distorted or it can become a center of individuation with no other agenda other than exploring, learning, and being.

When more of “you” learns what other possibilities there are for existence, then even more off “you” wants to go along. This is not a trifling matter.

Central to this is reaching a sufficient level of completion. If your core human self still has unfinished business and strong dynamics and belief systems that tie it in to this 3d level, then how can you expect your lower self to willingly participate in some adventure that may somehow equate with “annihilation”?

However, if it sees that the human self is coherent and complete and happily working in concert with higher self, etc., then this represents a more stable or “safe” situation. Especially if it understands there is continuity to its existence, perhaps as part of a new type of spiritual individuation that is also part of a much larger being.

So, now you have a new “partner” and more of you is “on board”. This would be the part of you that also holds some of the keys to the physical and subtle realms of the body consciousness. This level of consciousness contributes an intimate knowledge of the operation and navigation of the physical world. Can your ordinary self directly operate and access the cells, organs, and systems of your body?

When this stage is reached there is a state of no fear and there is a willingness to let go of the body and other attachments of physicality for a new life at new levels of existence.

I bring this up here since this seems to also be related to the misguided spiritual misdirection that leads to unnecessary internal psychological conflicts.

(In the “old days”, the higher level soul beings would come and go from humans with little care or regard for their “hosts”. Things are different now.)

One of the keys to resolving this is to address your “completion” as a human now.

When you make that breakthrough, there is a new type of freedom and new levels of true free will to exercise. But it rarely works to try to convince yourself that you are complete. This is like tricking yourself. Doesn't work very well. You can try this as an “as if” exercise. Monitor your thoughts and impulses. Where is there unfinished business? What is the nature of such concerns? Are these tied to illusion of the matrix world? Are these related to interpersonal issues? Is there something from your human past that you need to address? Are there larger existential spiritual issues?

When you find the deeper learning, then you find greater levels of completion.

Ultimately this has little to do with what you may or may not have imagined you did or not done in the human world. Or what you imagine did or didn't happen to you in this lifetime. This is like realizing that there is nothing important about half full/half empty notions and you walk away from the “paradigm of glass” entirely.

There is a level of satisfaction that comes from such essential completing. This is why we have emphasized this so much in recent months. Why wait? Perhaps there is less “time” for this than you might imagine in this human lifetime.

Graduation

One of the benefits of human level existence for those who operate from a more expansive consciousness is that it offers direct knowing into the inner dynamics and potentials of the matter density levels of 3d and the manifestation processes of creation.

This has been a prime attractor for many soul beings to come here, no matter the risk. While there are other density experiences available, this one on Earth offers the full range of challenges, further complicated by the dominant influence of the dark side.

In contrast to those who would have you “embrace the dark”, we suggest calling to yourself all your “true light” and asking of the correction energies to filter out any dark energy contaminants. This is especially effective if you understand something of the nature of the dark and the nature of this realm under the control of the dark. Hence the importance of assimilating all the crucial spiritual learning you have.

This is not a matter of book learning, this is your own internal learning and higher knowing. The larger transformational process is removing and filtering dark energies leading to connection with the original unified field of creation that does not have nor require conflicting antagonisms in order to have a dynamic existence.

The correction energies also appear to be amplifying and accelerating inherent dark side flaws in 3d. The dark energies have few and fewer places to hide and are trying to maintain their foothold. This will affect human behavior, often in irrationally bizarre ways.

For those wondering what else might be next, there is the ongoing exploration of the awakening human self as a core or seed element to the higher self/soul being or/and as a core or seed element to a new type of spiritual being.

Time-Space Adjustments and Anomalies

There has been some recent reports from people of possible time or space anomalies. From simple things like vanishing and re-appearing objects to more dramatic things like lost time and other seeming impossibilities according to human consensus reality.

When we discussed the “big picture” in terms of ascension, transformation, the origins of the dark, and the return of light, we made reference to the possibility that when all is said and done, it will be as if the dark had never existed.

It would be as if all the events contributing to trauma and abuse to all facets of creation under the influence of the dark would never have occurred and the conscious of soul beings and their various aspects and manifestations would be “made new”.

Some of these anomalous events that are being noticed are related to this.

Consider that the process of “re-writing” this Creation is underway and it is now touching in at 3-d in the human earth realm.

These adjustments are occurring in what we call the past and are being reviewed from what we might call our future. It is as if it is all is accomplished and we are here simply tidying up everything in the “past”.

Popping Out of the Matrix

As the human self, per se, awakens further, questions comes to us such as "what am I doing here"?

Too often there does not seem to be a higher self/soul being "online" to explain what has been happening and serve as trustworthy higher guidance.

In some ways this is like popping out of the Matrix in the movie of that name.

All I can say now is that this will become a bit more of problem and that it is a work in progress. Like the “Outer Limits” old television series, “please be patient while we adjust your signal.”

Intending your connection to the higher Oneness energies and connection is essential - regardless of whether there is functioning communications link open between the human "you" and the larger soul being "you" or its 3-d interface.

In some vague way it is a little like Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz intending "home" as she clicked her heels.

Remember not all strangers who offer to help have your higher and best interests.

Do not presume you can “fly” immediately - unless you know you can of course!

What is the highest spiritual aspirations that you are most attracted to?

How is your connection to the higher Oneness? Are there others like yourself you may encounter?

What is your flight plan?

A Transfer of Consciousness

Given the state of consciousness of some people, it may seem only possible to equate the collapse and dissolution of this civilization with failure and hopelessness. While quite understandable, it is not necessary to take this stance.

Others are developing a more expanded state of consciousness, and are anticipating more breakthroughs. And there is the excitement at the transfer of consciousness that is occurring.

Some are creating new energy bodies for themselves that their awakening human consciousness would transfer to. Some are preparing to transfer to their local energy body. Some are preparing a separation from their physical existence, like a rocket stage parting. Suffice to say there are various ways of maintaining an individuation of consciousness.

I cannot speak to the possibility of the physical bodies vanishing, although I know this has been done and therefore it is a possibility for some. Some may “float out” in bubble-like or points of consciousness. And yes, there are those “alien/ET” allies that are more akin to aspects of our own larger being and who may step in when the time is appropriate.

There are those who may remain here for an interim period to help with the process of transition for the planet and humans. Some may remain embodied much as they are now, some may leave their bodies, and some may for a period merge with another who may be embodied by mutual agreement. There are also those who may merge some portion of themselves with the earth’s body.

The main bifurcation now is that of a small fraction of humans who are consciously focused on their spiritual evolution as spiritual beings –in contrast to those who mainly define their existence as a physical body based personality.

There are those who are spiritually-oriented, yet are obsessed somehow with their DNA, etc. Similarly, there are those who are disturbed over the idea that “their” DNA was somehow messed with from alien abductions or perhaps eons ago, etc.

DNA, as it is with the intended notions by Creator for a human form, is at essence not a bio-physical structure, it is a meta-program, a type of sentiency that serves whatever higher level consciousness is responsible for it.

Worrying about your DNA is like worrying about whether your present physical body will become your immortal energy body. It is not likely. That said, there is the possibility of some humans literally walking out of this reality. But this is not the sine qua non for ascension.

To fixate on such notions is to effectively short-circuit or defeat ones ascension of consciousness.

It is the state of consciousness that is primary, always. This also implies a vibrational state.

There are those who, whether they realize it or not, are on a path of transferring their consciousness to a new level of existence. This is not a matter of “leaving anyone behind”. Rather, it is a tremendous act of true service to the greater creation and to the evolutionary path of the individual and its soul being.

To those who wonder what to do with themselves, that it is important to address “unfinished business” in whatever form or thought this entails and to focus on completing ones life as an awakening spiritual being. While frustrating at times, this is not mutually exclusive with doing what it takes to maintain ones ordinary existence. This is a good time to simplify ones human existence, minimize the distractions from the surreal matrix, find ways to ease ones existence, and develop a keen intent and focus upon what your highest attractor may be. Always pushing the envelope.

Insist upon only the real truth, not more projections or distortions.

Careful What You Wish For

For lack of a “high attractor”, the vast majority of humans have been cultivated to define their existence according to terms set forth by the dark control matrix.

Consider someone interested in developing spiritual consciousness and ethical living while practically working toward a “good life” under the matrix reality. Consider that in two years they had a taste of the “dream” but it quickly became a nightmare that many years later grew to present serious impediments to their ordinary material life. Once they had the experience of “the good life” and then the intrusion of the dark side that came as a “hidden attachment” like computer malware, there was a potential lesson to be gained from these contrasts. The choices were before them continually, but which to choose? And so the contrast between these two incompatible existences became an internal bifurcation that developed into a larger and larger tear in their consciousness and material existence.

This is the story for so many today, whether they are an aspiring small farmer or someone with educational (matrix world) training that they were led to believe “qualified” them for a chance at the “good life” and a “meaningful life” within the control system.

Even with honorable intentions, if you deliberately seek “success” in the matrix world, this immediately limits your consciousness. It does not make you evil or dark, but it limits your capacities.

Those who have succeeded with enormous wealth and influence for the most part have been rewarded for their role as intermediaries in the parasitism of energy, as represented by money and the emotional attachments invested with people who are the prey. This is a human “as below” counterpart to the dark force “as above” parasitism and predation upon light energy. It is one way to understand the murky undercurrents of intense emotional energies of everyday life under the dark forces as well the more extraordinary levels released during mass warfare.

While there are always those exceptions, the main point here is that this reality is not one to identify with. Learn from it yes, but maintain a well-considered detachment from it. Easier said than done.

Today, it is important to find ways to ease your material life in every way possible and take greater responsibility for your own spiritual “care and feeding”. This is more important now than ever before. The more you are free of this dark-light entangled matrix, the more this will help others.

A New Earth

The ambiguous notion of a “new earth” represents a new vibrational existence that is in accord with higher oneness of true creation. It is also related to the making new of the consciousness and physical environment of this planetary body. These are not mutually exclusive and may be more coincidental in time and space than many realize.

Some day in some new future, there may be explorers who discover unusual rock formations that were to us in our present time a major city or a nuclear installation. They may well wonder about the residues of plastics and other substances they find in the rock that originates from this period of existence.

As to this familiar earth, its consciousness needs to be renewed, the present human civilization cleared or removed, and the biosphere renewed.

It is possible and likely that there will be those awakened humans who will constitute “islands of light” and who will remain here to watch and participate in the process. There are also those who will transfer some portion of their consciousness into this planetary body. This is not the first time this has been done by highly awakened beings when they are done with their bodily form.

In one version of a future world that has benefited from the “correction energies” and the lessons learned here in this realm, there may be one in which the memory and consciousness of “matter” itself will be sentient with the deeper lessons and knowledge of the this and other worlds that came before.

A new earth imbued with a sentiency that extends to the atoms of matter will enjoy a special relationship with . Those beings who walk upon a highly sentient new earth will find a telepathic-like connection with the entire planet. From this close mutual relationship can develop a new type of planetary organism.

In the first essay “New Ways of Creation” there is a big hint that the very mode of present day “making stuff” is fundamentally counter to that of an evolved spiritual existence.

This will be how nascent creator beings will learn the process of manifestation, starting out in simple ways.

Islands of Light

There are now growing catastrophes in the material world. In response, some people will cooperate in a positive way with one another and perhaps find new meaning in their ordinary human lives. Material cooperation is a tangible benefit of cooperative conscious community and provides a basis to develop something far more expansive than just material cooperation.

Of those, some will seek to deepen this into a spiritual connection, while others will seek to restore what they found comfortable of the old. In my “future forwards”, I found small “islands of light” of simple living of small communities of people in various areas. The focus of these communities was solely upon spiritual evolution.

For some indeterminate interim period these “islands of Light”, mostly located away from urbanized madness, will be exceptional situations. There is no guarantee as to durability of any of these communities. Some may receive assistance from non-earthly, non-ordinary sources. Their purpose will be to provide mutual support for their own spiritual evolution and to help others in whatever capacity that may be appropriate to their main purpose in being. In addition these would likely provide a direct conduit to the real time situation relative to the planet and the human sphere of existence.

Final Resolutions

A vast creation consciousness would not deliberately set out to in effect repeatedly abuse itself as existence within the dark realm has been experienced.

Imagine sending probes to an unknown world, it would take many efforts to eventually get a probe successfully through to this dense realm that would eventually provide a coherent signal back to source. It would then take considerable effort and time to send more probes to determine something useful about the nature of an unknown such as the denser levels of creation. Even more would be sent to understand the unknown world’s “ecology”. Eventually there would be probes to explore the potential for a growing sentience. It would take a supreme effort over time to collect and assimilate what has been learned.

Imagine now that this is also how soul beings and other higher level beings have explored the denser realms of creation, often at great risk to themselves. Eventually enough conscious beings would need to have “feet on the ground” to develop a consensus on what it is they discovered.

We are now in the stages of many levels of completion and the outcome may well surpass what could have been anticipated or intended –despite all that has occurred or been perceived to have occurred here.

When all is “said and done” it will be as if the dark never existed and the high creation consciousness will know of the dangers of the “great error” and thus will not engender it.

In pursuit of real truth it is necessary to set aside ones assumptions about ones own existence and even the nature of existence itself. In most instances, this requires a level of detachment and surrender that is contrary to the nature of present day human existence. This also means to surrender notions of ones self and learn to function as if you are more than your physical body and limited socially-defined self.

The potential for learning and evolutionary growth is unimaginable for those who choose this.

Those who do not pursue such a course will have ample opportunities upon the end of their physical existence. In the interim there will be some intermittent two-way communication with their higher levels of being, usually with only a limited awareness of this by the human self. So you see, all is not lost. It is truly a “no-fault” situation.

Beyond Choice

To return to the opening point of this section, the choices can be distilled as follows: Either original creation was insane in creating what would eventually develop into an anti-creation force, “the Dark” –or– The emergence of the Dark was the result of an error, an oversight that perhaps could not have been anticipated in its effects.

The implications of this for human and other individuated beings can be distilled into the following: Reject original creator and embrace the dark; Reject the dark and embrace original creation; Reject both and attempt to seed “something else”, and consequently give birth to another version of the “dark”.

There are elements of the dark that take a great deal of "proprietary care" in the activities of "their" humans as it may further their agenda. Those elements of the dark in their own perverse way "love" what it is that is in their realm, under their influence. There are other elements of the dark that relish in destructive chaos when their desired outcomes fail or are thwarted.

This is a fallen realm that relies upon layers of deceptions and false dichotomies to entrap residents and visitors alike. Love-hate, love-fear, war-peace, etc. are examples of false dichotomies. The basis for the deeper falsehoods is traceable to the origins of the dark forces.

The philosophy of unity of opposites, notions of random statistical probabilities, all these are dynamics of a sub-reality based upon falsehood and distortions. While at one level within the dark control paradigm these principles are operative, these are not the root program itself, rather they are part of its deceptions. Personal and collective pain, suffering, and anguish all have their origins with the dark side that broke away from true creation.

Those who know this, know that there cannot be a solution to falsehood and polarity that comes from within the realm of falsehood and polarity. The solution is found from the realm of original creation and that is directly linked to the spark of original creation that is passed to our larger soul beings and that through them connects to our awakening human consciousness.

In conclusion, a few more “notes for the journey” ...

“You” are more than your physical body and as such there is no such thing as “death” as human culture expresses it as something to fear. This is known well from many who have traveled back and forth.

Your human beliefs do influence you initially upon making your transition. Consider, the least baggage, usually the better. Having a high level attractor also helps in navigating your way.

There are healing and learning centers, classes and teachers on the “other side” to help. There are no right or wrong answers, and no timed exams!

“You” are most likely connected with a larger evolving soul being that has been working to understand the human experience and the nature of density and much more. This is part of its learning and evolving. It is that which will most likely welcome your awakening human self. You will find more of your connection to your own higher soul being or higher self –directly as well through your higher self –and your connection to the light of true creation. It is your first step toward “Home” and your reconnection to your greater being, memories, and true Creator.

So many are tired or angry and wish to leave this existence. This is very understandable, but such positions are based upon repulsion and not a positive attraction. So it is a negative thing. This is endless since it based upon “not this and not that”. Then what? There needs to be a high level attractor. People can generally spend their entire life rejecting all that does not seem right. This is an endless process in a fallen realm. So at some point there needs to be a prime attractor. One that represents the higher levels of “truth” and “beauty” and “love” that is essential to the true creation impulse.

Some will develop the highest vibrational love, a localized counterpart to the “high oneness” of the true creation. This becomes ones own growing energy beacon, a new “call home” signal. It can be directed upward and a reciprocal response received, one that can resonate between and grow between your lower and higher levels of being, and that could expand outwards.

Call the true light to yourself and yourself to the true light. Ask that the correction energies of creation aid you in this process, flowing through the space between the atoms of your physicality and flowing through your higher level being.

All my best to you each and all,

Alex

A Possible Teaching and Training Program to Foster
Cooperative and Awakened Community

Awakened Community & Social-Spiritual Consciousness

By Alex Kochkin

The social science research we undertook (In Our Own Words - “IOOW-2000”) demonstrated through statistical analysis and intuitive insights, the state of social-spiritual consciousness, the nature of the social control memes, and how to bridge them in promoting transitional community that can be more receptive to developing higher consciousness.

No one had undertaken such work before, partly due to the requirement of originating intentions and conceptualization, complex expertise required, and the costs of implementation.

Essays on conscious and awakened community have explained essential and guiding principles and origins to help people find new ways to be with one another and to align themselves with the new creation or correction energies.

Taken together with the awakened community material, this forms the basis of an important teaching program that people of a wide range of interests would find compelling and illuminating.

“Why bother now?”

Simply this: as long as you are embodied there is a growing pressure to learn what is to be learned about reality and existence and to support one another in various ways, including cooperative awakened community. This is not about trying to build an enduring new village, city, or civilization as the old disintegrates all around. This is about conscious awakening in a mutually supportive environment that could include a high-degree of self-sufficiency and a way to help ease the growing burdens of ordinary material life. Perhaps such conscious and awakened communities could form the nucleus for islands of Light. Perhaps.

The main thing is that no one knows how long human existence will be on this planet, nor do most know how long their own personal human existence will continue.

Thus, if you understand the importance of what has been conveyed in these pages over the years, then you are on a path of awakening to your spiritual nature that is beyond your ordinary physical form.

If this is so, then you also are aware how little there is left in the old life and how it is that personal “completions” are so very important.

Thus it matters not how long your biological life span will be, but rather what one is to do with their nascent spiritual energies.

In this regard, we are looking for individuals or organizations with integrity and capacity to carry this out. For those called to such service, I am confident that your efforts will readily become economically self-sustaining. Those interested need to read the IOOW-2000 research and be familiar with the ANA book content. Please do not contact me unless you have read through those materials first and have formulated your own sense of this.

Global Awakening News – “A-List” Update – February-March 2011

The purpose to all this is to assist and facilitate people in creating cooperative awakened conscious community. It is not to create some new doctrine or big moneymaking scheme like “The Secret”, etc.

Tish and I will personally work with the founding circle to convey all that we can of our work and insights and assist this group in preparing the public presentations.

We already have an enormous body of written, graphical, video, and audio material. What remains is more a matter of selecting and editing from existing material and in preparing the training material in the context of working with this founding circle.

Details and protocols to be worked out depending upon interest. At least two group meetings will be required with us supplemented by online teleconferencing.

The IMAGINE Questions

Note: In 1999, one of the projects we funded started with the idea of introducing these simple elements of the consciousness of the “new creation to young people in a classroom setting and to encourage them to create visual or written or spoken expressions. It was not until ten years later that I would revisit the essence of these relative to what I had learned of the new creation processes. Link:

<http://www.pfcn.net/Bulletins/Making%20Things-New%20Creation.pdf>

Following are the original questions posed. The completed Language of the Awakened Heart guidebook that was produced failed to address these directly, due to unfortunate influences that I will not trouble you with here.

Imagine a future you would like to be in. What you give voice to, will be. Imagine anything and everything is possible. Remember to consider the purpose and meaning of your thoughts before you speak them. What is created? What does it feel like?

Imagine looking in to the eyes of your favorite animal. You can experience anything that animal has known and experienced. Imagine it can help you communicate with other animals and plants. What wisdom does this animal give to you? What do you say to the other animals and plants?

Imagine you are the recognized leader of your country. You have two opportunities to address the entire population of children and then of adults. You have three minutes (for each address). What do you say?

Imagine you are a new star and you have planets revolving all around you that you have created. Do they have life on them? If so, what is it like? What does that life want to be?

Imagine you could compose music and /or lyrics for a song that will be shared with many millions of people. What do the words say if there are words to the music? How will it sound?

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTES

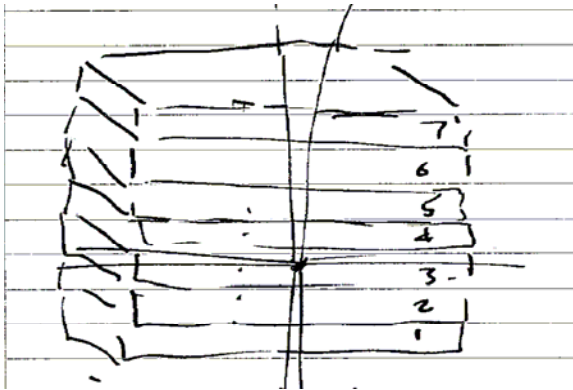

For those already moving ahead

Notes on Vibrational Levels and Ascension

The soul beings have energy centers that extend out, mostly into a corresponding energetic spectrum (something like 3.0 to 3.9-d, 6.0 to 6.9-d, etc.) potentially through various levels of creation and at times bridging between them. The capacity of this is usually governed by the state of evolution of the soul being. A corresponding situation exists in a limited way among humans as well.

Some levels of soul beings, just as with humans, have sustained degradation over time and damage from dark interference. If this damage or circuitry degradation is severe enough whole levels can be cut off or otherwise isolated. At some point, there can be enough difficulty that even the human or the soul being can have serious “health issues”.

Now, imagine a stack of thick plates of glass or clear crystal material. These would represent the range or spectrum of the main vibrational states or dimensions of existence. You can look through all the stacks and sometimes see something above and below or beyond, but usually this view is limited in scope and is subject to distortion due to refraction and occlusions in the material. Now change your point of view to something parallel or to the side, and it is possible to look through the range of all these layers and take in more of the qualities of each layer.

Embracing both, with internal experience within and among each of the layers, provides a greater depth of understanding of creation. Without this it is not possible to evolve to new levels of being.

Each level of dimensional layer potentially connects to all comparable levels throughout The All.

This is comparable (in the “as below”) to a human charka extending forth over vast distances –galactic or beyond.

These levels are energy transducers and were intended to function as such.

The usual viewpoint from human POV is a limited one looking through many layers and unable to see the whole picture. As a 3-d POV, there are even challenges to taking in the breadth of the range of vibratory levels in 3d.

A new point of view is one that can look through all the layers or levels at once and begin to integrate this. It may be possible for some soul beings to access as much of this creational space as possible at once. Also to look at what is next, where all this can be going relative to the corrections as well as future evolution. Yes, the awakened human self becomes a participant or observer at least in all this.

As with the human chakras (a mini version) so it is with the soul levels, etc. that they are extensive and enormous transducers –when they are working properly. There really is no finite shape or limit, these vary and potentially connect with most of creation.

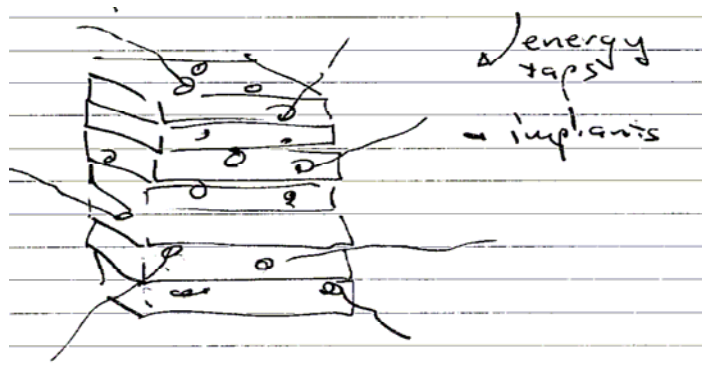

Also from the soul being perspective it generally regards itself as vast and eternal. Very little bothers it. Even if some upstart aspect on Earth is jumping up and down about the rising waters and boiling gases, and all the alligators, etc.

So the soul being may appear to be nearly static in so many ways and speaking generally, barely aware of its situation and parameters. After all there is a lot to learn but speaking generally, it has little idea as to when it is ready. Everything is so very interesting. Everything. And there is part of the problem.

Due to dark interferences, and various encounters with “Borg ships”, the soul being accumulates sludge and crud, implants and hidden bombs, and suffers from various voids and internal potholes. Usually these are part of the learning and there are cosmic car washes to visit periodically. However, these entities were not equipped to deal with the anti-creational force of the Dark.

These accumulations begin to interfere with the souls ability to interact or transducer energies across its levels and thus interferes with its connection to higher Oneness and as these accumulations concentrate in proximity between levels, communications between levels is interfered with.

Worse yet are the implants and other subtle world “tech” that is used to monitor, manipulate, and siphon energy.

This entire situation makes it nearly impossible for the soul to be of direct and effective help to its distant fractions or aspects that it sends out in its process of probing and learning of the nature of creation and in developing or evolving itself.

Even connection to the higher Oneness is interfered with.

As we look at the billions of soul beings presently connected through humans, it appears as though roughly 20% to 30% are generally light and 80% to 70% are generally dark. This is not a reflection upon their core nature, rather it is a description of the general situation and the extent of the damage done by interacting with the Dark force. Like going through a dirt storm without a bath.

As to humans, it appears as though a small percentage, perhaps even less than 1% are presently capable of moving into their own evolutionary completion. Perhaps another few to several % are willingly accepting of their conscious ascension.

More on this later.

The End of “Grand Cycles”

By Alex Kochkin

The mythology that prevails is that there are “grand cycles” during which there is an alternating degeneration and ascension of consciousness. This is closely linked to the notions of there always being dark and light and that this is “how things are” and “how things were meant to be”. This is comparable to the falsehood that the Dark was deliberately created as a “teaching tool”. An alternate notion is that the Dark is a product of humanity’s fundamental “sin” or “fall” from grace. A related corollary is that the Dark is actually performing a valuable and conscious service by showing humans the difference.

These are false memes that are woven into a wide range of ancient, religious, and new age teachings. Those who are most keen on 2012 meme, also accept it as a temporal marker in these notions of “grand cycles”.

There may well be some ancient influence of solar cycles, binary star or distant planetary relationship. But even if true, and spanning a substantial time period, this does not mean that this is how things always are or were intended to be. It is quite likely that these celestial phenomena are related to the period of the fall to begin with and actually have nothing to do with “how things were originally intended”.

In Global Awakening News, we have discussed the origins of the Dark and explained logic and criteria that one can apply for themselves in discerning truth from falsehoods.

It is also interesting that one version of these cycle says that were still have quite a few centuries of the Dark remaining (Yuktswar) –and thus a good excuse to tell everyone to “suck it up” and settle in for the long haul under the control of the dark forces.

These notions of cycles of spiritual light and spiritual darkness may well have been apt descriptors of how things were, but from perspectives that have their origin outside of the dark control realm, such notions only serve to perpetuate the control of the dark by misleading people into thinking these “grand cycles” are somehow immutable and how things always are to be.

Higher Oneness, 3d Life, and Beyond

By Alex Kochkin

Away from this fallen realm, in the vastness of true creation there are differences and diversity but not antagonistic conflicts. It is a falsehood that opposites are required for existence or creation to evolve. “The All” is essentially self regulating through shared higher oneness, etc. There is no “dark”, only the great “Is-ness” of “true creation”... the “true light” you could call it. It does not see itself as part of a dynamic or dialectic with “dark”. Such things simply do not make sense and are beyond irrelevant.

This is one of the reasons that it has taken so long to comprehend the nearly impossible situation in the 3d earth-human-soul being realm.

But now it is all changed.

I really do not know how this will play out. But the next step that I am aware of is the bridging of states of being and consciousness. This facilitates more of a “transfer of consciousness”.

Some will remain embodied but with partially ascended awareness, some staying focused here for a while to help in all manner imaginable; some who will remain embodied a while longer will go back and forth helping humans to make their transitions; some will lose their embodiment and be of assistance on the other side, etc. There are many variations to all this.

The new states of awareness are enough to keep many here and embodied a while longer –it is so interesting and engaging and such a pleasant surprise. This new level of awareness also helps in navigating this world with greater ease and less stress –slipping between the rough spots. The new consciousness permits deeper and more rapid learning of the dynamics of 3d density level creational problems and possibilities.

What matters for this new wave of partially ascended consciousness is the connection to higher oneness and to effect a similar connection at all levels into density that are possible.

There are those who are transformation-ascension directed, yet still are concerned and distracted by human events. The situation is what it is and perhaps acknowledging how dismaying the whole situation of humans on earth has been will have to suffice for now. Anger has little place in the process for the transfer of consciousness as it only perpetuates a polarity of dark versus light –something that should never have existed.

Many who are spiritually inclined are hoping and anticipating for this version of humanity to achieve some “golden age”, perhaps as soon as 2013. How are 7 billion terribly confused and naïve humans going to do this in two years with a planetary environment that is already ruined beyond human repair? I do not see this occurring based on the present state of human consciousness and the enormous human population living in a state of chaos and distorted consciousness.

Looking at the larger situation, the soul being level must integrate what has been learned here and be prepared to work in a manner congruent with creation principles of higher oneness. This is the heritage of soul beings imbued with the divine spark of existence. Those soul beings that are ready to do this are already preparing. This will contribute to new patterns to be applied in working with a human or other 3d self upon a new earth or comparable situation.

The state of consciousness and being that originates from “Creator of All” and that exists in the vastness of “The All” has no place for conflictual antagonistic polarity. It does not exist at those levels and was never intended to. Yet differences do exist and interact within a mutual higher oneness. What might be deemed “mistakes” are creational learning that is self-regulating through this shared higher oneness.

Knowing all this, there is no reason in our own higher being not to have some expression in acknowledging all this. Dismay is quickly replaced by elation with the new energies and the new freedom that is experienced.

While eventually much of what has taken place here in dark realm will be erased – as if the dark never existed – during this transition period of unknown duration, it would be unwise to ignore this or pretend otherwise. This is most certainly the case for those who will be here – embodied or not – assisting those still self-identified as “human” with their transition process to a more expanded or higher state of consciousness and eventual new state of being.

For whatever it is worth to those reading this, it is possible through individuation of higher consciousness to explore and live in situations that are not compatible with ordinary earthly life. For example, moving through the apparent solidity of a planet, entering into the sun, taking a dip in a lava lake, moving through deep space. This also suggests it is possible for highly evolved beings to directly interact with these more specifically “detailed” levels of creation. This would include the development of a collective planetary organism that is capable of moving through the sea of creation, no longer under the domination of orbital physics. This is one possibility for a “new earth”.

A Noble Sentiment but...

Spiritual Responsibility at the Higher Levels

By Alex Kochkin

There has been a noble and worthy sentiment circulating among the “higher levels” that tends to cross-link with the human level and soul-levels to “keep on keeping on”. This has a human as below counterpart, that being the impulse for humans to continue on, adapting to worsening conditions, procreating, making new industries, yet never learning much about the true nature of existence in 3-d.

Assume the higher human powers-that-be are practically gone, their power broken, and assume the invisible dark forces also are practically gone, their power broken as well. Why not see what the humans will do “on their own”? Perhaps even with a little help from some of the “good guys”? Perhaps even with a reduced human population? ...And with all that has been, what is a little more suffering if for such a noble goal? To this last point, I would say that if there was a better “track record” of correcting such a horrendous situation, perhaps there would be many more awakened humans who would be signing on. And what of the higher level soul beings...? (Please bear in mind this has been is a broad characterization, like a caricature, and is not a literal description.)

The main problem as I can present it, is that of spiritual responsibility at the higher levels. How could humans be left to fend for themselves, even with some outside help, on a planet so ruined by the dark forces, in a situation not of their making? In addition, there is a major problem with this: The possibility of a new dark force arising out of some portion of future humans who wind up rejecting the Higher Oneness.

Some humans might evolve with the help of the creation correction energies and the higher beings and appreciate what came before and why and be fully willing to take on such a challenge of reclaiming a damaged world from the dark.

Yet others might take umbrage, wondering why they were placed in such a situation of environmental and material adversity, in a situation not of their making. Of this group, a portion may even wonder if “the gods are insane” and form the basis for a new dark, anti-creation force, a variant on the “Luciferic” impulses that have so influenced much of human development. This situation alone may result in many conflicts and impediments between humans of disparate levels of evolutionary development.

Challenges to this situation are manifold beyond the obvious with regard to the deleterious living environment and the collapse of this civilization and its technologies. The deeper challenges pertain to problems with the vibration state of 3-d matter/reality at the atomic bonds that are required for a stable 3-d reality matrix. (The atomic bond problem is related to this being a creation of the dark that lacked the essence of the true Creator in its imaging this manifestation. Thus it came as close as it could and these instabilities are becoming more noticeable.) And then there is the problem of implanted memories and memes and damage to the field structures of humans and their consciousness. And of course the related damage to the fields of the higher level beings that are associated with the humans here and now. In the short run, there is the problem of the carryover of a rapidly degenerating human existence materially and socially with myriad humans reacting through various degrees of insanity based on extreme stress and unresolvable cognitive dissonance.

We have written before that it would be spiritually irresponsible on the part of the higher levels to keep humanity imprisoned as it is, with increased suffering and dysfunctional of consciousness. It is equally spiritually irresponsible to simply leave everyone here on earth to the increased predation of the dark. This bears upon both an imaginary continuance of this version of humans –and upon whatever remainder there is from the ascension process.

At this time I can only offer reasonable speculations as to what measures will be taken to minimize this. Such speculation however has no place in this discussion at this time. Suffice to say that this is still being addressed in various ways, and not through any one modality. Further, it is not something we can do anything about from this level, at this time.

The process is in good hands and on track.

Spiritual Anger

By Alex Kochkin

Yes, "spiritual anger" does have a useful place for a little while, if for no other reason than to help motivate and raise up one's internal spiritual elements. The question then becomes how is this new-found energy to be directed or channeled?

I do so understand. It is all so unfair at so many levels. And additionally maddeningly frustrating to feel beleaguered by the stresses of this human world while also dealing with the challenges of developing ones connection to ones divine origins. This challenge becomes all the greater if ones higher level soul being is also "under repair and reconstruction" as well.

“Divine intervention” does not really comprehend things like currencies and nations and the details of corruption of humanity, etc. --a type of corruption that insinuates itself all the way down into the individual human level. The change is one that occurs from the spiritual beings all the way "down" into the human vehicle --and now with the "correction energies" from the human vehicle "upwards" into the higher levels. Thus a complete circuit is attempted.

The planet itself is undergoing a comparable set of alterations since the planetary consciousness was also corrupted by the dark.

I can do nothing directly to help those who are in situations where their human options are limited to joining a military, struggle on as subsistence slave labor, take to the streets in futile protests and become expendable pawns to forces they know nothing of, or end ones human life out of despair such as is occurring with so many in so many places around the world.

We are presently focused here on that small portion who are literally waking to their connection with their greater being and connection to higher oneness. They are the ones who will be in a position to be of aid to many more. But none of this is about restoring nations, economies, government, or anything else that plugs people into a social control system again.

For those who are now in the leading waves of those who are nearing "ignition" of these spiritual energies and expanded consciousness, it is essential to "stay the course" and not dissipate these new spiritual energies in all those ways that have no beneficial effect at any level.

If one is in the process of awakening to this, it is ones human self choice, however informed or misinformed, whether to throw ones human self into a battle against material and non-material forces that are barely comprehensible --or to become a more evolved spiritual being and thus be able to truly be of greater service.

Put even more plainly: Imagine a family of many many children, all with "great potential" , but only one embodies or otherwise becomes that potential. Along the way this “one of many” sees what is wrong with their siblings but also knows that they cannot "fix them" no matter how high and noble the intent.

Does this “one of many” stay in the sinking vessel with their siblings and drowns along with them in the name of "solidarity" to their siblings and participate further in their imminently terminal experience? Or does this “one of many” rise to the occasion and go on to reach a higher position from which they can understand and possibly be of further help? Furthermore, imagine such aid and assistance is not to necessarily in the form of material rescue from the sinking vessel --so they can repeat the same experience in another form --but rather to be there to welcome them when they make their transition from their former material peril.

-ASK

PS:

Consider the situation of someone interested in developing spiritual consciousness and ethical living while practically working toward a “good life” under the matrix reality. Consider that in two years they had a taste of the “dream” but it quickly became a nightmare that many years later grew to present serious impediments to their ordinary material life. Once they had the experience of “the good life” and then the intrusion of the dark side that came as a “hidden attachment” like computer malware, there was a potential lesson to be gained from these contrasts. The choices were before them continually, but which to choose? And so the contrast between these two incompatible existences became an internal bifurcation that developed into a larger and larger tear in their consciousness and material existence.

This is the story for so many today, whether they are an aspiring small farmer or someone with educational (matrix world) training that they were told “qualified” them for a chance at the “good life”.
